Both Houses Plan Action In Two Weeks

Roosevelt $1,182,000,000 Program for Strengthening Army and Navy Gets Support of Both Parties; Sky Armada Biggest In World.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—In an unprecedented peacetime move, the war department today asked congress to suspend legal restrictions which now limit the size of the standing army to 280,000 enlisted men, and the air force to 6,000 planes.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Congress, rallying to a call for "millions for defense," slashed through red tape today to get double-quick action on President Roosevelt's $1,182,000,000 program for unprecedented national preparedness in the skies, on the seas and on land.

Both house and senate manifested, with scattering exceptions, a unanimity that almost approached the pitch of early New Deal days in 1933. Leaders set for themselves the goal of having the president's recommendations voted in two weeks time.

Mr. Roosevelt's somber references to "ominous days," voiced in his surprise address to congress yesterday, still were fresh as the legislative wheels began to turn.

There was his emphasis that it was not enough to have formidable defense plans which existed only "on paper," and the accompanying reminder that in the last few months inadequately prepared nations had found "themselves overrun by the enemy."

Swinging into action as soon as the president concluded speaking, house and senate committees pointed to a short cut to start work on a program which included a recommendation for a 50,000 plane air force. Such a sky armada would surpass the reported strength of any foreign belligerent.

The contemplated short cut was to incorporate virtually all the president's emergency plans in the regular army and navy bills now pending for the year beginning

HOOVER BACKS DEFENSE PLAN

Agrees With President on Billion-Dollar Program For Preparedness.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Herbert Hoover, who was succeeded in the White House by President Roosevelt, today cast aside all partisan considerations and whole-heartedly endorsed Mr. Roosevelt's billion dollar defense program.

"The president is right," he said in commenting on the message the president read before congress yesterday, "that our defense armament should be revised in the light of experience from this war.

"There can be no partisanship upon the principle of national defense."

He recommended that production be placed in the hands of a staff of tried leaders chosen from actual industrial production.

In the past Hoover has frequently differed with his successor's international policies, and as recently as last July declared that President Roosevelt had brought the threats of war closer to this country by taking "a seat at the table where (international) power politics is being played."

Asks Billion for U. S. Defense

President Roosevelt is pictured during his momentous message to congress in which he requested defense funds that will enable the United States to "meet any lightning offensive against American interests." The U. S. chief executive said the United States "should plan at this time a program that would provide us with 50,000 military and naval planes." Vice President Garner is pictured in background.

Westinghouse Plans $500,000 Expansion

Work on New Buildings to Be Started Early Next Month; Refrigerator Output to Be Boosted One Third.

Stepping up its production facilities in Mansfield, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company today announced a $500,000 expansion program.

The project calls for the construction of a new metal stamping building, and an addition to one of the plant's present buildings, along with installation of new tools and other equipment.

The expansion will increase the plant's refrigeration production by at least one-third, according to L. E. Osborne, manager of manufacturing and engineering of the merchandising division, and C. L. Van Derau, works manager of the Mansfield plant, who announced the expansion program.

The expansion is the company's first major one since the seven-story warehouse on East Fourth street was completed three years ago.

Work is expected to start on the new buildings within the next two weeks, and is scheduled to be completed by early fall.

Installation of new machinery will follow immediately and is expected to be completed by the end of October.

The new building will be located next to the vitreous enameling plant. It will be a one-story building, 70 feet wide and 360 feet long, but with a height equivalent to a three-story building, in order to permit installation of large cranes.

FIRST REPORT

Red Cross to Check Up on War Relief Fund Tomorrow.

Richland county Red Cross officials will make a report tomorrow on contributions received so far in the county's drive for a $6,000 war relief fund. Only $83 had been contributed up to this noon and that included one $50 gift.

National officials telegraphed a request today for a report and for all money collected is to be sent to Washington immediately.

"Every hour brings new and agonizing details of human destruction and misery in Europe far surpassing anything our imagination can conceive," the national chapter wired John H. Finefrock, Richland chairman. "In response to the first appeal for aid we immediately made funds available to the Belgium and Netherlands Red Cross and we are purchasing large quantities of ambulances, hospital trucks and medical supplies, both here and in England. We hope your chapter will reach its quota quickly."

Britain Cheered By Roosevelt's Defense Program

LONDON — (AP) — The British press today splashed accounts of President Roosevelt's message to congress under such headlines as: "United States Prepares For War."

The newspapers expressed gratification that the United States' rearmament efforts—according to the president's expressed wish—would not curtail Allied buying of warplanes in America.

The London Daily Mail's commentator, G. Ward Price, writing under a four-column headline, "Will America Enter The War?" declared

"Britain and France are fighting desperately to defend the vital interests—even the existence of every democratic nation in the world, including the United States. In that struggle we may be sure that America will not stand idly by to see us defeated and destroyed."

SHIPPING LOSS

Germans Report Sinking Many Allied Craft Wednesday.

BERLIN — (AP) — An official German announcement claimed that the Allies had lost 90,000 to 100,000 tons of shipping in the sea warfare on Wednesday.

"Thus far two destroyers and three merchant ships were reported sunk and two destroyers and four merchant ships were damaged," the announcement said.

Five Councilmen Hold Session In Office Building, Talk Over Paving Puzzle.

PUSHES ALL-BRICK PAVING

Kyle Tells of Objections By Citizens Who Protest Combination Surface.

Five members of city council met in a caucus last night which they sought for a time to keep secret, to discuss the West Fourth street paving project and adjourned following a lengthy session without arriving at any decision on the type of pavement to be laid.

The meeting was held in the office of Third Ward Councilman George Kyle, in the Walpark building.

Attending the session were Republican Councilmen Kyle, C. N. Shultz, water committee chairman; and Democratic Councilmen George Berg, chairman of the street committee, Fred Miller, finance committee chairman, and Harry Emmons.

Those attending the meeting at first refused to discuss the matter this morning and denied that any such meeting had been held. Later, they admitted they had discussed the type of paving to be laid on West Fourth street, but said no agreement had been reached.

Shultz, Kyle and Miller, the only ones who could be reached, declined to say who had called the session. It had been agreed earlier that a caucus would be held previous to last night's scheduled special meeting which was posponed due to the death of Philip Smith, councilman-at-large.

AIDS INDUSTRY

Economists See Defense Plan Helping American Business.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Administration economists predicted today that President Roosevelt's billion-dollar defense program would have a substantial stimulating effect on American industry by mid-summer.

At the same time, they prophesied that it would make little change in WPA rolls, because millions of unemployed men outside relief ranks may get first call on the new private jobs.

Employment for billions of dollars of idle money lying in banks also was envisioned, as officials indicated that treasury borrowing probably would be the principal method of financing the new program, even though it might involve increasing the $45,000,000,000 debt limit.

History Retold as Kiwanians Celebrate 20th Anniversary

(Pictures on Pages 8 and 11)

Twenty years as one of Mansfield's leading service organizations was celebrated by the Mansfield Kiwanis club at a birthday party last night in the ball room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

About 150 members and their wives, and state and international Kiwanis dignitaries attended the celebration, during which the early history of the Mansfield club as well as the Kiwanis organization was retold by various members and guests.

Among the prominent Kiwanians here for the party were Don Mumford of Bellefontaine, Ohio governor Edmund F Arras of Columbus, past international president, eight past Ohio governors and three lieutenant governors.

History of the Kiwanis organization and high spots of past Kiwanis International conventions were outlined by Edmund F. Arras, principal speaker, who spoke on "Silver Threads Among the Gold." The first Kiwanis club was organized in Detroit, and that city had the distinction of having the first international convention in 1917, Arras told the group. The second club was organized in Cleveland and the third in Pittsburgh.

The Mansfield club was congratulated on its fine record in the 20 years of its organization by Governor Mumford, who gave a short talk on "Ohio Kiwanis."

A welcome was extended to guests and visitors by W E Ford, president of the Mansfield club, who also introduced the 15 past presidents who were in attendance. They were W. J.

Germans Say Everything Set But Date for Lightning March on Neutrals.

(By Associated Press)

BUDAPEST — Germany was reported today to be massing whole divisions of blitz troops—mechanized and motorized forces—on the Slovak frontier of Hungary and pointed at Rumania 140 miles away.

Unconfirmed advices from Vienna, credited indirectly to German army officers there, said that all but the date had been set for a lightning march through Hungary.

The reports plunged the Balkans into new fear. Military observers expressed belief that Germany might strike into the Rumanian oil fields to keep her war machine in the west from running out of gas.

(The British broadcasting corporation announced that Rumania had decided to cancel army leaves. Rumania holds a guarantee of British-French aid if invaded.

Suit Backfires, Shelby Man Gets 10 Days In Jail

A damage suit in which he hoped to collect $780 backfired in common pleas court yesterday for George Kistler, 28, of near Shelby, and brought him instead a 10-day sentence in the county jail and a $25 fine.

The sentence and fine were imposed by Judge C. H. Huston who said Kistler misrepresented the case and gave false testimony on the witness stand. He denied signing certain papers involving property in the case and contended that the signature on the petition in the damage suit was not his.

Judge Huston dismissed the petition which sought damages from C. L. Beal and William Stroup of Shelby for allegedly selling livestock and farm equipment without authority.

The testimony Judge Huston said, brought out that Kistler had mortgaged the goods, defaulted, and had no legal rights to the property.

German High Command Declares Main Allied Defense Crumpled and In Flight; Belgian Government Withdraws From Brussels.

(By International News Service)

Germany's armored divisions and dive bombers have pierced the French Maginot line at several points and are streaming into France today on a 60-mile front, according to Berlin claims.

Paris partially confirmed the claim. Unofficial but presumably authentic French information revealed a stunning Nazi thrust between Maubege and Sedan. This gain put the spearhead of the German attack some 25 miles inside France, it was admitted.

The German high command claimed that the breach of the Maginot line placed their troops within 75 miles of Paris. The French capital was now, or soon would be, under the fire of German artillery, Berlin asserted.

The main Allied resistance had crumpled and was in flight everywhere along the 60-mile battle front, the Nazi command asserted. It was expected in Berlin that a final great battle within the Paris area would shatter the Allied armies.

Meanwhile, German bombers carried out a night raid in the Seine-Et-Oise area, on the southern outskirts of Paris.

London reported a British merchant vessel attacked by a German plane in the English channel. Even in South African waters German mine fields were reported to have been placed.

The Belgian government, threatened by German gains in central Belgium, withdrew from the capital of Brussels to the channel port of Ostend, according to a Reuters (British) dispatch.

A Nazi attack on the great Belgium seaport of Antwerp apparently was in the first stages with the leading units of both sides just making contact. Violent attacks were being hurled at the Belgo-British line in central Belgium, near Louvain, it was admitted.

The great German drive on Paris struck like lightning at a moment when the Allies were believed to have halted the attack. Just a few hours earlier the reich government adopted an attitude designed to convince the country that the Allies cannot be beaten overnight.

From Berlin came the jubilant declaration the Allies had suffered "the most catastrophic day" of the war. The Germans claimed the capture of two French generals in addition to 12,000 prisoners. And, in a general summary, the Germans proclaimed:

"We beat them as they never dreamed it would be possible to be beaten."

The Dyle river positions of the Allies in Belgium were pierced, according to Berlin. German troops were claimed to have penetrated into Louvain and to have routed French and British troops from the heavily fortified French zone south of Sedan.

That was the German side of the picture. From France

WAITING: Mussolini Ready to Enter War at Proper Moment

(By United Press)

ROME—Rome was plastered today with thousands of posters urging that Italy seize Corsica, French island in the Mediterranean, the birthplace of Napoleon.

The posters plus widespread demonstrations against Great Britain and France and an unofficial coolness toward what was reported to be a new peace proposal by President Roosevelt, combined to increase the feeling that Benito Mussolini was ready to enter the war on Germany's side when he felt the moment was right.

The new posters, plastered on walls and buildings in every section of Rome during the night, quoted portions of a speech of the Corsican Italian Nationalist leader Pietro Giovannini.

'Italian mothers,' the posters appealed, 'do not forget Corsica—the most Italian earth for 2,000 years.'

Following the brief announcement that Mr Roosevelt had sent a personal message to Mussolini, the prevailing opinion in usually well-informed circles was that the likelihood that Italy would enter the war had become even greater. It was felt that there was little reason to expect Mussolini to consider any peace move.

BOTH HOUSES PLAN ACTION FOR DEFENSE

Congress Slashes Red Tape to Rush Appropriations For Army and Navy.

July 1. This would obviate the need for protracted committee hearings and would expedite a vote in both houses.

To add to the regular army and navy funds totaling $1,971,000,000, Mr. Roosevelt asked $732,000,000 for the army and $250,000,000 for the navy. Besides this, he requested $200,000,000 to be placed at his discretion for use, if necessary, in event of emergencies affecting the national security and for contract obligations related to defense needs.

As lawmakers took stock of the geared-up defense program, they found it as intricate as the mechanism of one of the fleet units it may involve.

One thing quickly became apparent—the defense boost was likely to give the country the largest peacetime budget in its history. Approval of the extraordinary appropriations, added to the regular government expenditures in sight, would send the outlay for the next fiscal year to about $10,000,000,000—or a billion more than the year just ending. Almost one-third would be for national defense.

Financing Problem.

Closely linked was the question of financing the preparedness spending. Mr. Roosevelt made no suggestions on the score.

Informed congressional sources indicated that increased borrowing, rather than new taxes, would be the method. This appeared to fore-shadow a raise in the $45,000,000,000 public debt limit, now almost reached, but the sources said that action probably would not be necessary at this session.

Many congressmen expressed agreement with the president's assertion that the transcendent thing was to make the national defense invulnerable, and that other considerations were secondary.

Discussing the recommendations afterward, the one point on which Republicans reserved promises of support was the request to allocate $200,000,000 to the president for contract authorizations and emergencies affecting the national security.

The house Republican leader, Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, referred to this as a "blank check."

Blank Check.

"We're for the program," he announced. "However, we will want to look into this blank check proposition. I don't believe we should have any blank checks lying around."

Treasury officials, meanwhile, pointed out that this particular request had an exact counterpart when Woodrow Wilson was voted the same amount for defense purposes a few days after 1917 hostilities began with the central powers.

Another Republican exception to the completeness of the defense proposals was taken by Rep. Taber of New York, a member of the appropriations committee.

"The president failed to say that he is going to appoint a secretary of war and a secretary of navy competent to run their departments, and this is the prime essential before another dollar is turned over to him to fritter away," Taber said.

Two-Year Program for Warplanes Asked.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— An air force of 20,000 planes within the next two years is the army's immediate goal under President Roosevelt's program for 50,000 military aircraft.

The program, which is expected to be placed before congress in detail as part of President Roosevelt's $1,182,000,000 compares with the army's present 2,700 planes and its present authorized strength of 6,000.

In addition, big increases are expected in naval aviation, which now has 2,800 planes. Figures for the naval plane program were not yet available.

A goal of 10,000 navy planes in two years was considered likely. That would mean a grand total of 30,000 army and navy planes by July 1, 1942.

The huge increase in planes will be accompanied by a $400,000,000 government-private ownership program to expand aircraft plant facilities, and a huge pilot-training plan.

Officials estimated production capacity of warplanes now at about 13,000 annually, excluding trainers and other minor craft, which probably would bring the total to about 20,000. They assumed Mr. Roosevelt's reference to 50,000 military aircraft meant 30,000 fighting planes and 20,000 trainers on the current 60-40 per cent formula.

Germany is reportedly producing about 3,200 warplanes monthly and intends to bring it to 6,000 by next September. Great Britain and France together are turning out about 1,500 monthly.

Gentlemen:

Some time ago I purchased on your budget plan four Life Guard Tubes to be installed in my somewhat worn casings.

I travel close to eighteen or twenty thousand miles per year, and on open stretches step along 60 and 70 miles per hour.

On a recent trip traveling between Plymouth and Shelby, Ohio, I experienced my first blow out doing 70 miles on a slight curve.

My surprise was that there occurred no noticeable effect, "not the slightest," in my steering wheel, and after slowing down gradually in say a half mile I came to a complete stop in a safe spot to change the tire, but in looking over all the tires I couldn't determine which tire blew out, so I proceeded on my way for say another fourth mile and then discovered it to be my left front tire.

Since this one experience the safety insurance that I have enjoyed has well repaid me for the small cost of this wonderful tire failure eliminator, and your salesman, who sold me The LifeGuards, has earned my life long gratitude. In fact were I to buy a new car, I would insist on LifeGuard installation. They rate tops with me.

Yours truly,
(Signed) L. A. McINTYRE, MGR.

CHAPTER XII

There was considerably more—concern for Aunt Rachel's health and the hope that she was finding the New York winter stimulating. She concluded with:

I hope you are finding your new secretary satisfactory and that she is more concerned with your comfort than her own—after your last unfortunate experience. For a long time I have tried to persuade you that a mature woman would be more compatible. Do let me know your spring plans and, of course, as ever, you are most welcome with us. Lovingly, Jessica.

Brooke's face burned as she slid the note back into the envelope. "A mature woman would be more compatible". . . .

Mrs. Kingsbury pursed her grim lips. "I think we may go sooner now. In April. Yes, in April. I'll write her tomorrow and tell her." Taking a deep, tired breath, she said, "Poor child. But I warned her!"

Feeling that she must know more, Brooke went directly to the kitchen to Ellen who was preparing dinner. Speaking low, she said, "Mrs. Kingsbury has a letter from her niece and we're going to Hawaii in April. They've taken a house there."

"Hawaii?" Ellen cried. Then she sighed, "Oh, that will be nice!"

After the tone of Jessica's letter, Brooke wondered.

Ellen whispered, "They have a hard time getting along. He's a musician, a pianist and composer. But musicians never make any money, the young ones anyway, and his people, the Forbes, have to help them out. She's been a great disappointment to Mrs. Kingsbury—Mrs. Forbes has. She has two cute little girls."

* * *

As she mixed batter, she lowered her voice so that Brooke had to come nearer to hear. "She's waiting for Mrs. Kingsbury to die. She isn't her niece, she's his niece, Mr. Kingsbury's. She's waiting for Mrs. Kingsbury to die but no one but her lawyer knows what's in her will. It's a terrible strain on them."

Brooke asked, "Who was Mrs. Kingsbury's last secretary?"

Ellen seemed frightened "Oh! She was a nice little thing but in California she stole Mrs. Kingsbury's diamond pin. They said she stole it but—oh, I shouldn't be talking like this—but I think Mrs. Forbes thought Mrs. Kingsbury was getting too fond of Miss Rose and . . ."

Brooke balanced, frowning, everything else dissolving before this new problem. Understandable too, now, was the old lady's unfriendliness.

She said, "I see," and went to her room, thinking how little she had known of Mrs. Kingsbury when she had seized the opportunity to work for her—to be near Rod. Dropping into the chair, she closed her eyes but the tears squeezed through. She was so tired, so tired. Retreat? Go back home where there is safety and security and friends? Aloud she said, "Oh, I can't!" An object of pity on the streets of a town with a long memory? Did Rod realize he had set her adrift?

She looked defeated and bewildered when she came into the dining room for dinner. Mrs. Kingsbury glanced at her sharply and sniffed disapprovingly when Ellen sneezed.

Ellen's sneeze led to complications. For three days later she came down with the grippe and to Brooke fell the entire care of the apartment, Ellen, Mrs. Kingsbury, and the preparation and serving of the meals. But it was a task she welcomed since it filled all her waking hours, leaving no time for contemplation. Mrs. Kingsbury was more than usually cross and it was not until Ellen was convalescing that Brooke noted an amused glint in the old lady's gray eyes when she brought in her breakfast tray.

"You've done very well, very well," she said. She nodded and added, "Very efficient."

Brooke thanked her and went to her patient. The verbal pat on the head helped immensely.

Brooke's hands were deep in suds when the phone rang at noon. She picked up a towel and dried them on her way to her room.

A masculine voice, vaguely familiar, asked for her and when informed that is was she, said, "This is Julian Carlton. You're having dinner with me tonight, Brooke."

She hesitated, trying to recall him. It seemed years since that late afternoon in Barney's living-room when his had been the only pair of eyes that were friendly.

"I'm sorry but I can't. I'm both nurse and housekeeper here. The maid is ill and I can't leave. . . ." How had he reached her? Through Barney Glass perhaps, who had probably told him the nature of her job.

Julian said, "I'm sorry, too. But that makes it all the more imperative that you get out when the maid is well."

She had not been out of the apartment for a week.

He said, not waiting for her to speak, "I'll call you again and if there's snow not too far away, I'll see if you uphold New England's reputation for skiing. Good-bye, Brooke."

He said her name naturally as if he had said it often.

Her "Good-bye, Julian" was strained and unnatural, she knew.

It did not matter in the least to her whether or not he ever called again.

Ellen's recovery and her return to her duties reduced Brooke to lonely afternoon walks again and the contemplation of her past and her future. The link with Chatham seemed somehow to be broken; Grace wrote guardedly and Helen vaguely.

What Brooke felt on those cold afternoon walks, which usually led nowhere, was for the most part a despicable self-pity. Humility was a virture but not the humility of one rejected, whipped down and frustrated. So she fought for a return to normalcy, to the consciousness of beauty and the sheer joy of living that once had been hers. It was a lonely fight and though she could depend upon Jim, her one friend who telephoned regularly, she knew that had there been a host of Jims, it would still be a lonely fight.

There were some mornings when she woke and told herself that she was better—as if she were coming out of a long delirium—but there still were moments when she felt she must do something desperate. Rod, close, as close and as vivid and as alive as the last time she had seen him, walked with her night and day.

She could look back now and see that it was she who had given most in the last months and that her heightened feelings, not his, had given beauty and magic to their meetings. Was it a common failing of women to believe that love is always mutual? Feeling so much, trusting, believing, she had thought that he felt the same. "Dear Brooke," he no doubt had been thinking, "so good and faithful. We were childhood sweethearts, but I outgrew you, my dear."

What did she want now? She had no friends except Jim. Actually she had no home but this. She could quit and look for a position here but how many Chatham girls who had felt fairly safe in their jobs in New York had returned home, jobless! And such a short time ago there had been no need for a plan to her life—only to be included in Rod's giant plan for his. It was as if she were alone for the first time.

Felt So Nervous And Upset Couldn't Sleep Some Nights

Truck Farmer Relates How a Few Bottles of Vendol Gave Marvelous Relief from Constipation and Now Feels Like a Different Person.

MR. RUBEN BITTINGER

"I certainly can recommend Vendol to anyone who suffers like I did because I never had any medicine do so much good," stated Mr. Ruben Bittinger who owns and operates his own truck farm on route 1, Perrysville, Ohio, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store.

"I was constipated and this made me so nervous that I seemed to be upset all over sometimes, and many a night I'd be awake for hours after retiring. If I awakened during the night I'd twist and turn, roll and toss, it seemed like for ages.

"Another trouble this constipation caused was awakening with a bad taste in my mouth, tongue coated, and feeling tired and worn out just like I hadn't been to sleep at all, and I didn't want to eat anything for breakfast.

"Also, it seemed that my stomach would fill with gas after eating and a hot, sour liquid would rise up in my throat and burn like fire, and I'd have spells of 'heartburn'.

"I often read what people said about Vendol and how it relieved them of these troubles, so I began taking it a few weeks ago along with some of the little Vendol laxative tablets.

"I never enjoyed such wonderful relief from constipation in my life; then that nervous, quivery feeling gradually passed off, and I no longer get into bed than I was off into restful sleep. Now, every morning I awaken without a sign of a headache or tired out feeling, and ready for a big meal.

"Nothing I eat now upsets my stomach, and I haven't had any gas, sourness, cramps, or distress since about a week after I started taking Vendol.

"I am glad to praise this fine medicine and hope my experience will lead many to try it, and also get relief."

Vendol is for sale by all druggists in Mansfield and nearby towns, and is especially recommended here by Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts.

Burton to Conduct Own Campaign for Senate Seat

SCHORR STAND IN PRIMARIES NOT FORGIVEN

Cleveland Mayor and Governor Bricker Meet Today For Co-operation Talk.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Rather than entrust his campaign for the U. S. senate to persons unfriendly to his candidacy before his smashing victory in Tuesday's primary, Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland will maintain his own headquarters in Cleveland.

This was learned today as the nominee prepared to meet with Gov. John W. Bricker in the statehouse for a preliminary discussion of campaign plans.

Burton was expected to inform Bricker that he will cooperate fully with the state campaign committee to elect the entire Republican ticket in November. He said he has no intention of resigning as mayor before the November election.

The meeting today between the heads of the GOP state ticket resulted from a telephone call by Bricker to Burton. The governor expressed the hope that they could get together soon to talk over the campaign and Burton replied that there was no time more suitable than the present.

It was doubtful that the senatorial nominee would demand that Ed D. Schorr, of Cincinnati, be unseated as state chairman when the central committee reorganizes soon, because of the amity between Bricker and Schorr.

However, some of Burton's influential supporters favor such step in view of the state chairman's emphatic denunciation of the nominee before the primary as "not a good organization man."

Schorr's anti-Burton activities stemmed from the difference of opinion between the mayor and Bricker during Cleveland's relief difficulties last fall. Burton wanted the governor to call the legislature into session to appropriate additional funds But with his administration pledged to economy and no new taxes, Bricker rejected the entreaty.

A matter likely to be discussed by Bricker and Burton today was the separation of the national and state tickets in the November election. This would require approval of the legislature at a special session.

Recalling the Roosevelt landslide of four years ago, many Ohio Republicans would feel safer, with the president's attitude toward a third term still his secret, if the ballots were separated.

Glamor Girls Get Figure Break In Starchless Spuds

YONKERS, N. Y. — (U.P.) — Glamor girls and other calorie counters get a break today with the announcement of the successful grafting of potato and tomato plants to produce a starchless potato that won't make anybody fat.

George H. Chrisholm, superintendent and horticulturist at the estate of the late Samuel Untermeyer, developed the starchless spud. Chrisholm had already carved his niche in gastronomic annals by innoculating Honey Dew melons with liquor, producing fruit flavored with Cognac, Benedictine and Port.

Chrisholm raised first the ordinary variety of Irish potatoes, then grafted tomato plants to the tops. The plants, only about a dozen of them, grow in gravel without soil, and are nourished by magnesium sulphate and six "secret" chemicals which Chrisholm administers twice a day.

Two large Amaryllis plants, grown in the biology department hothouse at Senior high school, decorated the school's business office today. The plants were placed in the office by Fred E. Elder, biology teacher, in whose room they are kept. Every time one of the plants is in bloom Elder takes it to the office, but this marks the first time they have both been in bloom at the same time. One is a dark red and the other red and white.

Apple trees in Mansfield that now look like big bouquets of blossoms prove that crop experts were at least partly wrong in forecasting there would be little or no fruit this year. Many of the trees are as full of bloom as it is possible for them to be, and unless frost kills the young fruit, the prospects are good for apples in most sections. Less able to withstand the cold winter, the peach trees are virtually bare of bloom, the extreme cold ruining the trees.

If Mansfield policemen were a little off their stride today it wasn't because of a hard night at patroling their beats. Most of them were off duty last night long enough to attend the police department's annual stag dinner at the Southern hotel. It was a big dinner and there weren't enough scraps left to feed even one hungry dog. State highway patrolmen "covered" the city during the dinner.

A number of Mansfield friends and former parishioners of Rev. M. G. Nicola, who left Grace Episcopal church here April 1 for the Episcopalian parish in Ravenna, will go to that city Sunday for the opening services of the remodeled church. The church building is 123 years old, having been built in 1817. The opening service will be held at 10:45 a. m. Sunday. "Nick" is very enthusiastic about it and hopes that a number of his friends will come over.

JUNE GRADS PRESENT REPEAT PERFORMANCE OF 'THE ENEMY'

By KEN WOODMAN

Before an audience of some 200 people, a cast of ten members of the June graduating class last night presented a repeat performance of Channing Pollock's "The Enemy" at Senior high school auditorium. The production, sponsored by the Mansfield Ministerial association, had been given originally as the class play April 16.

In the cast, Robert Tawse, Josephine Hughes, and Miriam Jenkins were particularly valiant. In supporting roles Henry Sanford, Richard Wright, Edward Maxwell, John Mosey, Eugene Rudolph caught the spirit of their characters.

Virginia Casperson and John Bishop, who played the boy 'Kurt,' showed fine spontaneity.

The entire cast is to be commended for the sincerity of its portrayals.

However, the decades in which Mr. Pollock's play has been kicked around the country have not improved it any as drama fare, even though its message is admittedly timely just now.

What the author has to say has become familiar even if not accepted. He proclaims that the real enemy in all wars is hate, that the ordinary people of all nations are the helpless victims, that unprincipled individuals prey on the common misery for personal profit, and that war settles nothing.

His analysis of war hysteria remains sound: there is still the "foreign monster," the cry that "if we don't attack 'they' will; and the right is on our side."

E. L. Haesley directed the play and music was furnished by the high school orchestra under the direction of J. K. Jorgenson.

DIES AT AGE 80

L. D. Kirsch, Hayesville Native, to Be Buried Saturday.

Landie D. Kirsch, 80, a native of Hayesville, died Thursday afternoo at his home four miles north of Mansfield in Madison township, after a lingering illness.

Born Dec. 26, 1859, Mr. Kirsch moved to Madison township from Hayesville 56 years ago. He had been in the dairy business for 40 years, retiring three years ago because of ill health.

Surviving is a son George of Mansfield; two daughters, Mrs. Harmon Pugh of Mansfield and Mrs. Harry Allis of Cleveland; two brothers, Rev. J. B. Kirsch of Riverside, Calif., and F. W. Kirsch of Ashland; a sister, Mary A. Kirsch of Massillon and six grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the Finefrock funeral home with Rev. Fred Shirey of Shiloh officiating. Burial will be in Windsor cemetery.

ASKS BIDS ON 7 STREET JOBS ON SOUTH SIDE

Sewer Construction, Grading and Graveling Planned For Early Start.

Acting to start improvements on seven streets in the southwest part of the city, officials today advertised for bids on the construction work.

The proposals include the construction of sanitary sewers on four streets and the grading and graveling of three others. Total cost of the combined projects has been estimated at $15,350.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton announced today that sealed bids would be received by the board of control until noon, Monday, June 3, for the projects.

Construction of the sewer lines calls for the laying of more than a half mile of eight and 10 inch pipe, along with the construction of 14 manholes on the streets.

The work to be done includes construction of 1,880 feet of eight-inch sewer on Overlook avenue and Coleman road, 1,950 feet of 10 inch pipe on Barnard avenue and 160 feet of sewer line on Sloan avenue.

Grading and graveling, along with the construction of necessary storm drainage will be done on Poplar street, Sloan and Barnard avenues.

The Poplar street improvement will extend from Ohio street to Sloan avenue. Sloan avenue will be improved from Poplar street to Bartley avenue, and Barnard avenue will be improved from Marion to Euclid avenue.

City council authorized the work at it's May 7 meeting and granted authority for the issuance of $14,700 in notes in anticipation of the collection of assessments to finance the property owner's share of the cost. The city's share had been figured at $650.

LET CONTRACTS

Commissioners Make Awards For Weed Mowing.

County commissioners had awarded contracts today for mowing weeds along county roads in six townships this summer.

Winners of the awards and the amounts included:

Cass township, Roscoe Swartz, $399; Monroe township, J. H. Darling, $474; Perry township, S. H. Peterson, $334; Plymouth township, O. C. Caldwell, $345; Washington township, R. O. Emerson, $603; Troy township, C. H. Morgan, $244.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board, said awards were made on the basis of the nearness of the bidder to the project and the amount of equipment he has available for the work.

He said contracts will be let for other townships after the commissioners have had time to investigate the qualifications of the bidders.

Plans Made for Caravan Tour of Conservancy Dams

The Richland County Conservation Committee met at North Lake park pavilion last night and discussed plans for a motor caravan and ox roast to be held at Mohican park June 16.

H. B. Donley, Ashland, of the state division of conservation, told of the caravan, which will start in Ashland on the morning of June 16. It will take a 27-mile tour of the conservancy dams and points of interest between them. Donley said there was scarcely a mile of the trip that didn't have some interesting point or historical marker.

The caravan will end at Mohican park where the Loudonville committee will serve an ox roast.

On Saturday afternoon, June 15, the day before the caravan, the League of Ohio Sportsmen will hold their regular meeting at the Otter hotel. Persons in the district interested in conservation have been invited to meet with the league to discuss legislation pertaining to conservation.

GETS TAX FUND

County Receives $8,400 From State In Sales Tax Revenue.

Richland county received an $8,400 allocation from the April state sales tax receipts today for local government expenses.

Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said the money will not be distributed to the cities, village, and townships until the May funds are allocated. The county makes the distribution every three months.

COOL WEATHER TO CONTINUE

Mercury Drops To 39, Weatherman Predicts More Showers.

There was no indication in the weather forecast today that the temperature is going up.

In fact, it dropped to a spring "low" of 39 last night and never got above 48 all day yesterday. This morning the mercury stood at 47 and had jumped only one degree by noon.

The weather forecast warns of "continued cool and partly cloudy weather tonight," and showers tomorrow.

TAFT ATTACKS HEALTH BILL

Wagner Measure Described as Dangerous by Senator at Medical Meeting.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Describing the Wagner health bill as "extraordinarily dangerous," U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft suggested last night a substitute program under which the federal government would merely supplement the efforts of local authorities to provide medical care to the needy.

"I would like to see the (government) assistance so restricted," he told the annual meeting of the Ohio State Medical association "that the funds could not be used towards the general socialization of the medical profession."

Taft, Ohio favorite son candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency, expressed belief that the federal government could "at a reasonable cost stimulate interest and assist the development of plans that will reduce the hardships of many unforunate families."

"In a federal budget of seven billion dollars," he said, "the ultimate expenditure of several hundred million dollars a year to supplement the work of states, of local communities, and of private charity does not seem to me an unreasonable sum in comparison with the tremendous good which it can do."

"The (Wagner) bill is typical of New Deal technique," he added. "Whenever an abuse occurs or a need arises in any field, the only solution which the New Dealer offers is a complete regulation and supervision of every detail of that field by the federal government."

DANGER ZONE FLIGHT GETS NEW IMPETUS

State Department Annoyed By Failure of Nationals to Heed Early Requests.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — As German forces threatened a further invasion of France and a bombing attack on England, the state department was making every effort today to speed Americans in war areas to places of safety, where they can board U. S. ships for home.

Obviously annoyed, the department last night pointed out that repeated earlier warnings to Americans to leave danger zones had been ignored. Now "the department is faced with another emergency in helping them to return to the United States," an announcement said.

Americans in Britain were urged to leave at once for Ireland. The department was considering a ship to the Irish west coast to bring them home. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, it was understood, has warned those who, for business or family reasons, cannot leave the British Isles to abandon large cities such as London and seek comparative safety from air bombs in the country.

There are about 7,500 Americans in the United Kingdom, most of them long-term residents. They were advised earlier to go to southern France, Spain or Portugal to be avacuated. But now the trans-channel trip has become so dangerous — presumably due to German submarines and planes—that Washington has advised them to go to Ireland instead.

Western Ireland is in the war zone from which American ships are barred. However, it is understood that Secretary of State Hull plans to make an exception and allow one or more American-flag passenger vessels to visit Ireland to pick up refugees. Both the Allies and Germany will be asked for safe conduct for the ship.

The state department still plans for Americans in France and refugees from Belgium, Holland and Switzerland to go to southern France or the Iberian peninsula to await specially-designated "rescue" ships. Italian ports still are open for refugees from that country and the Balkans—although Italy's expected entrance into the war would close them immediately.

While worried over conditions in Europe, the state department has found reason to relax its concern over the possibility of a crisis in the Far East.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There's no telling about this Wallace Beery, the most thoroughly scrubbed guy in town.

He has been washed up more times than any top-ranking star in pictures, and yet here he is today, going along at a good clip.

He never changes from the gruff, lovable, cussed old cuss, and why should he? There never has been any talk of "a new Wally Beery," and if there were the folks would probably stay away.

They've stayed away from Beery pictures before. Take that last one, "The Man from Dakota." Not so hot, and not doing so well with the folks. But here he is again in "Twenty Mule Team," a rootin'-tootin' number, and out at the studio they think everything is going to be all right again.

That's the way it's been with Wally, time and time again. He was "through" when pictures first began to talk, and pretty soon he wasn't "through" any more but busier than a one-man band. He got a lift into the 10-best star gang, and his movies with Marie Dressler raked in tons of heavy sugar. There was one time we all knew, positively and for sure, that he couldn't go on. That was when "Viva Villa" looked like Metro's most expensive, most colossal flop—before they remade most of it and bagged a super-hit.

When you think of it, the Beery type of stardom is the safest. It's easier to take a slight tumble if you've tumbled before, and it's easier to climb again when nobody expects the climb and you're aided by the psychological factor of surprise.

Speaking of safety in stardom, if there is such a thing in such a mercurial eminence, the evidence points to "characters" (of which Beery is one) as the tops.

The character men, stars or featured players, are the boys who work and work and work. Adolphe Menjou apparently has a life-time job—and he's the same Adolphe who, like Beery, has been well washed up on many occasions. He works around, is frequently starred, and never has time on his hands. Frank Morgan, turning from bumbling comedy to more serious dramatic stuff lately, is insuring a new life for his career.

Thomas Mitchell - he's "in" and apparently for keeps. Walter Brennan, who never got the girl in all his years in pictures, always wins by a whisker or two. Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman, Reginald Owen, Eugene Pallette, Donald Meek, Gene Lockhart, Lewis Stone, George "Gabby" Hayes, Joseph Schildkraut, Edward Arnold, Roland Young - what would movies be without them?

If I were in pictures (and couldn't be Walt Disney), I'd choose to be one of those boys. They not only draw starring checks (I mean most of them), but they get none of the bitter pills of stardom. Stars get blamed for bad pictures, but the character men get credit - and rightly - for salvaging bad ones, for contributing vastly to hit ones.

TAX RECEIPTS HIKE CITY FUND

$40,939 From County Wipes Out Deficit Existing For Past Month.

The city's general fund was back in the black today with receipts of $40,939 in classified and May personal tax money from the county.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said that of the total amount, $38,420 went into the general operating fund and wiped out a deficit of $10,800 which had existed for the past month. It left a general fund balance of $27,619.

Of the remainder of the tax money, $2,085 went into the general bond retirement fund, $208 for firemen's pension fund and $224 to the police pension fund, the auditor said.

He pointed out that the reserve in the operating fund was not too substantial since the city is faced with an appropriation of $30,000 from the fund for relief purposes. That amount was earmarked by council early this year and represents the city's share of the 1940 relief burden.

Zacharias Drops Decision to Maxin In Thrilling Bout

1,000 Fans See Cleveland Boy Top Mansfielder

National Champion Wins Four Rounds; Glover, Carbetta Defeat Rivals at Armory.

By CHARLES MARTIN

AS FAR as Jake Zacharias and Mansfield fight fans are concerned Joe Maxin is still the national amateur middleweight champion.

Maxin, holder of the four top simon pure titles, clashed with Zacharias in one of the feature matches in the Friendly House Boxers' Medical Benefit Fund show before an overflow gathering of 1,000 roaring fans at the armory last night and emerged with a close decision.

In one of the finest five-round matches ever staged in Mansfield, Maxin, showing vast improvement over his performance in the Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament, won the unanimous verdict of Judges Paul Eliot, "Gip" Miller and George Alderding.

Apparently realizing the importance of the tussle, both boys started dishing out everything they had from the opening gong and their stellar work had the crowd cheering to the final second.

Only three of the six Friendly House battlers came through with flying colors last night

Beauford Glover, crack lightweight, Paul Carbetta, bantamweight, and Joe Sauer welterweight, were the Mansfielders to register wins.

Glover was one of the two fighters to score a knockout He stopped Frank Franklin, Columbus city champion, in one minute and 47½ seconds of the second round

The other knockout victory was chalked up by Howard Hodges, Marion lightweight Using a devastating left, Hodges made ring history by stopping Ray Howman of Ashland The blond Ashlander, groggy from that left, gave up after two minutes and five seconds of the third It was the first time Howman has ever been halted.

Carbetta won a decision over Lou Diamond of Cleveland, while Sauer took the verdict in a slow bout against Jack King of Columbus.

Eddie Tally and Sam Walker of the Friendly House lost Walker, a tough featherweight, dropped a heart breaker to Jack Harrison of Cleveland and Orville Fisher, another lake city lad, defeated Tally.

Walker lost out on the judges' two to one verdict. He landed more hard blows, but Harrison's aggressiveness seemed to provide the Cleveland boy with the edge.

Boxing enthusiasts who saw Maxin in action in the Cleveland classic were surprised when the champion stood toe to toe and slugged it out with Zacharias.

Noted as a brilliant boxer, Maxin proved he ca. take it Several times Jake set him back with hard rights and lefts, but Maxin weathered the storm and handed the Mansfielder a dose of his own medicine.

Both lads came out fast The crowd was on its feet as Zacharias and Maxin opened up a slugging bee in the middle of the round. The pace set in the initial heat had some of the spectators wondering if they could last five minutes

Referee John Eichinger halted the boys near the end of the first setto to warn Maxin about holding Jake's hand while throwing punches.

Desperate to score the one victory he wanted most, Zacharias tried to measure Maxin with a knockout blow from the start of the second stanza, but his efforts were futile

The Clevelander took the first two rounds by a shade, and after an even third, grabbed the fourth and fifth Zacharias, knowing he had lost the fight on points, threw caution to the winds in the fifth as he tried to land one telling blow.

Young Glover's work was outstanding He neved used a long punch. Franklin, a nifty boxer, shifted nicely to avoid disaster in the first but Glover sent over a short left near the end of the round and the Capital city mutster took a count of five.

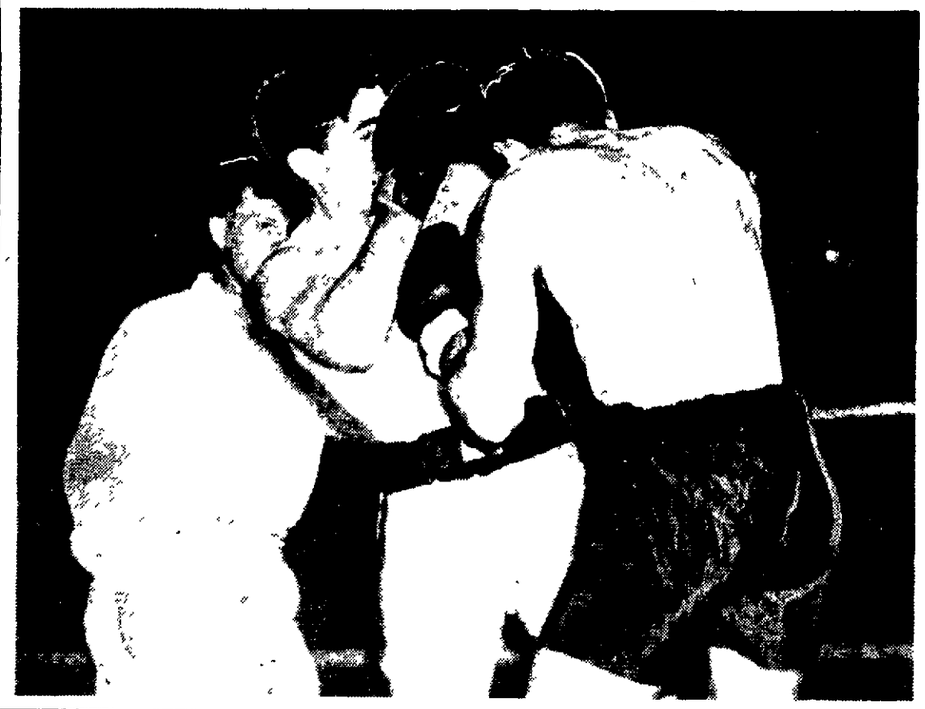
Action In Friendly House Amateur Fight



Joe Maxin of Cleveland takes a left from Jake Zacharias during the third heat of the thrilling five-round match on the Friendly House amateur card at the Armory last night. Maxin, national middleweight champion won on a decision before 1,000 spectators.

Here's Paul Carbetta peppering Lou Diamond of Cleveland in another five-round setto. Paul had his opponent groggy a couple of times, but couldn't land a knockout punch. Paul won all five heats. This happened in the second.

Mansfield Braves Entertain Tiffin Club at Fairground

IDLE two days because of inclement weather, the Mansfield Braves had hope today of renewing their Ohio State league rivalry against Tiffin in a "Ladies'" night contest at the Fairground under the arcs at 8:15.

Lloyd Joyce was Manager Dewey Stover's choice to take the hill against the Mudhens as the Braves try to regain their winning stride.

The Braves were to play at Tiffin last night, but Tiffin officials called the game off because of cold weather. The other two contests in the league last night were also postponed.

Mansfield is scheduled to take on the Findlay Oilers at the Fairground at 8:15 p. m. Saturday. It will be the last home game for the Braves until Monday when they meet Findlay at the Fairground.

Bob Arnold is expected to be on the mound in Saturday's contest.

Roster Complete for District Track Meet Play-Off Saturday

WITH Bucyrus and Tiffin Junior Order filing their entries yesterday, the roster is now complete for running off the eastern half of the Northwestern district track and field meet to be held at Stadium field tomorrow afternoon

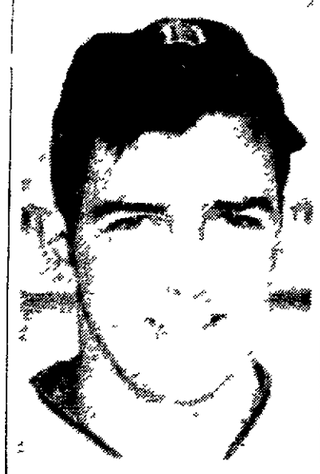
Including the Mansfield Red Streaks, the number to compete in the meet tomorrow has reached 28. Both Class A and Class B teams will be represented.

Outstanding among the teams signed for the meet are Fremont Ross and Marion Harding. Fremont Ross, boasting the services of Bob Shaw, finished high in the Mansfield Relays a month ago, while Marion copped the N. C. O. meet in Ashland last Saturday.

Howard, of the Presidents, turned in a sensational performance at the N. C. O. meet by setting two new records and tying one other. He broke the 120-yard hurdle and broad jump records, and tied the 100-yard dash mark.

Shaw, of Fremont, holds the Mansfield Relays shot put record and has proved himself outstanding in the discus.

Frankie III



Frank Ankenbrandt, 19, of Detroit, regular third baseman for the Mansfield Braves, today is confined at General hospital. He suffered a nose injury shortly before the season opened. A nose bleed late Wednesday night caused physicians to send him to the hospital. Lloyd Graham, of Minneapolis, a teammate, was called immediately for a blood transfusion. Dr. Frank Maxwell, attending physician, said today that Frankie had pneumonia. Maxwell stated that he would not be able to play any baseball this year.

Merchant Girls to Try for Four Straight Here Sunday

With two straight victories filed away in their memory book, the Mansfield Merchant Girls softball team will try for four in a row Sunday, when they meet the Cecil Township Girls of Lawrence, Pa., for the first time at North Lake park diamond in a doubleheader.

The first game is scheduled for 3 p. m. and the second at 4:15 p. m.

Helen Lawrence, one of the finest softball hurlers in the women's circuit, has won 60 games and lost two in the past two years. She will toe the rubber for the visitors Sunday.

T. L. Daugherty, Merchant manager, said today that the Lawrence outfit is the toughest team his team has faced since its organization. However, he expressed confidence of a win, provided Clark, Merchant hurler, hits top form Sunday.

The Mansfield Merchant Girls have chalked up wins over an Ashland girls' team and the highly-touted Akron Local No. 5 team, which played an exhibition in Madison Square Garden last year.

REX MAYS

INDIANAPOLIS—Rex Mays is the most talented speed driver in the 500-mile race. I say that with all regard for Shaw Petillo and the others. Tommy Milton and I were watching him flash around the Indianapolis Motor Speedway a couple of years ago. "If that boy's car will hold up for 500 miles, he'll win this grind," Tommy said. I agreed. And that's still the situation. This tall, slim driver so reminiscent of the great Frank Lockhart, is the "logical" winner of the world's greatest automobile race on May 30th. He's been driving the "500" since 1931, though, and hasn't finished one of them yet. He's held the pole position twice with fastest qualifying time. But the speed at which he drives simply burns up his cars. But—and it's an important one—this year is different. He's driving for Louis Meyer, the three time winner who has just retired. With Meyer directing Mays from the pit, and with this boy's natural wizardry at the wheel, it's a potential winning combination.

IDLE SECOND DAY

COLUMBUS—(AP)—For the second successive day, all Mid-Atlantic league games were rained out last night.

Red Sox Are Not Fooling

Boston Has Won 18 Out Of 24 Tilts to Increase Lead.

(By Associated Press)

THE Boston Red Sox aren't fooling with those gestures they're making toward the American league pennant.

Without any spectacular string of victories, the Red Sockers have won 18 of the 24 games they have played this spring and eight out of nine since they took over first place in a display of authority against the Cleveland Indians May 6.

They increased their margin over the second place Indians to three full games yesterday by outslugging the St. Louis Browns for a 7 to 5 victory. The same maneuver expanded their lead over the last place New York Yankees to nine and one-half games.

It's a long trip to the end of the season, but advantages like that aren't to be toyed with. Only three teams in the junior circuit are regarded as having a chance to cop the championship—the Red Sox, Indians and Yankees.

Unless New York gets going soon the McCarthymen may find themselves with too big a handicap to overcome. The Yanks haven't had a chance to play for four days, rain catching them again yesterday. The only other contest that escaped the weather was at Boston where the Chicago Cubs handed the Bees their sixth consecutive defeat, 5-4.

In that one the Bees outhit their foes 9 to 6 and had the benefit of a two-run homer by Al Lopez, but never quite got going against big Bill Lee. In the meantime the Cubs made the most of their blows with Rip Russell hitting a homer and Jim Gleeson a triple with two on.

Blues Stretch Lead To Two Full Games

(By International News Service)

The Kansas City Blues have taken advantage of cold and rainy weather throughout the middle west to stretch their American association lead to two games.

Other teams looked at the thermomenter yesterday and called off their scheduled games as the Blues defeated the St. Paul Saints, 5 to 1.

The Blues lambasted the pitching of St. Paul's Verdie Himsl for 11 hits—two of them home runs. Charlie Stanceu, on the mound for Kansas City, held the Saints to three hits One was a home by Rightfielder Gil Brack.

ZACHARIAS DROPS DECISION TO MAXIN

The dusky Mansfield ace scored with a short right over the heart early in the second and ended the setto with another left The winning blow didn't travel six inches.

Diamond was subbing for Ernie Mossman and he gave Carbetta a tough time of it. An experienced ringster, Diamond kept rushing Paul. The Mansfielder, however, took every round with his hard punching.

Numerous times he had Diamond staggering. Diamond replaced Mossman, whose mother is ill.

Allen Hugh, Dick Eichinger, Joe Griffith, Orlando and Cosmo Carbetta and Jack Eichinger appeared in three prelims. All are from the settlement boxing classes.

Their fights brought rounds of applause from the interested audience.

Rosco Butts and Joe Burk finished in a draw in the battle royal. Officials let them go an extra round. Butts was a favorite and the gathering was pulling for him to stop Burk.

Sam Fox was the official timekeeper and Jim Brownscombe was the announcer. Proceeds of the fight will be used to build up a fund to be used for medical bills for fighters injured while fighting under the Friendly House banner.

Demaret Thinks Competition, Flat Courses Make Texans Best

exactly why so many great golfers have come out of Texas in recent years—Ralph Guldahl, Ben Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, Byron Nelson, Dick Metz and the Mangrum brothers, Lloyd and Ray.

But Demaret, who won six of the winter tournaments, has at least a plausible theory, and between strokes in the Goodall round robin tournament at Fresh Meadow Country club here he expounded his views.

In the first place, Jim says, Texas as a state is inclined to be just a little more "competitive" than any other. The winner of a Texas state amateur tournament, for instance, knows he has been through something.

"Another possible reason for the number of good Texas golfers is this," he continued. "Our courses down there for the most part are pretty flat, and the average hole is not very long or too heavily trapped. The big emphasis is on the short game. That's what we've spent most of our time developing."

"Perhaps the most important thing of all," says Demaret, "is that we learn to play on very thin grass, compared to the fairways over the rest of the country. We have to learn to play shots all sorts of ways, whereas these boys up here are used to deep grass and they learn only one shot. And then, of course, we play the year around."

Unfortunately for this story, the Texas contingent failed to burn up the opening round of the Goodall tournament yesterday. Demaret, himself, got away to a 2-minus start, signifying that he was two down to his two first-round opponents at the close of the day.

* * *

Tied for the leadership, with six rounds of match play to go for the first prize of $1,500, were Jimmy Thomson and Gene Sarazen. Sarazen shot a great 70 yesterday, including a record-breaking 31 on the back nine.

Reeves Moves Nearer Shot At Mitt Title

Beats Kreiger to Stand on Threshold of 'Money' Bracket.

By LARRY HAUCK

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Young Jimmy Reeves, a powerfully-built Cleveland colored boy, today stood on the threshold of the "big money" bracket of the light heavyweight boxing division.

* * *

The former Golden Gloves titlist pounded out a decisive 10-round victory over Veteran Solly Krieger of Brooklyn, N. Y., last night before 6,583 fans to advance within shooting range of Champion Billy Conn.

* * *

It was Jimmy's 14th victory in 15 pro fights. He won every round and while there were no knockdowns, the New Yorker was reeling on the ropes as the bell ended the ninth.

Reeves weighed 168 and Kreiger 173.

Buddy Knox, the blond bomber from Dayton, avenged an earlier defeat as he took a close 10-round decision over Harry Cooper of New York The verdict was split, two judges voting for the Ohioan and Referee Vito Mazzeo for Cooper.

The Associated Press score sheet gave Knox four rounds, Cooper three and rated three even.

The crowd booed the decision for 15 minutes and a near-riot ensued as fans jammed around the ring. Tris Speaker, chairman of the boxing commission, became involved in a scuffle and police reserves finally were called to restore order.

Cooper, scaling 193, outweighed Knox by four pounds.

Georgie Toy, 140, of Cleveland, posted his fourth consecutive pro knockout by stopping Jimmy McCormick, 143, of Detroit, in the first round of a six. Norm Riegel, 158, of Lorain, decisioned Bobby Berry, 160, of Cleveland, in four.

Redlegs Open Against Phils

Jim Turner Scheduled to Face Philadelphia In Initial Game.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Done out of what looked like a good chance to give the Brooklyn Dodgers another dose of what for, the Cincinnati Reds move in on the Phillies today for a two-game series.

Jim Turner, who gave the St. Louis Cardinals 16 hits but not enough runs to win last Sunday, is the Cincinnati pitcher with Walter Beck throwing for the team that's just liable to give a lot of trouble this year.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds was agreeable to leaving Brooklyn after rain stopped yesterday's game in the middle of what could have been a handsome rally in the top half of the fourth.

When the game finally got under way, Bill Werber fired a homer off the second ball pitched by Luke Hamlin. The Dodgers tied it up in the second inning on singles by Cookie Lavagetto, Dolph Camilli, and Peewee Reese.

Then in the fourth Ival Goodman sent the ball riding out of the park. Frank McCormick walked, Bill Hershberger singled, and it rained

Since the legal minimum of 4½ innings hadn't been played, not a thing went into the books. Neither Werber's nor Goodman's homer goes in the records.

* * *

The fact, coupled with rejection of his protest of the Tuesday game by League President Ford Frick, made McKechnie glad to get out of Brooklyn with a half-game lead in the standings.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Some 500 duffers formed an appreciative horseshoe around the practice tee at the Fresh Meadow Country club as a group of golf's greatest players gave an exhibition of shotmaking before the start of the Goodall tournament.

* * *

One after one the men who make golf's headlines were announced over a loud speaker by Horton Smith and with effortless grace made the hardest shots appear ridiculously easy. Snead split the fairway with his mighty drives. Little faded long Brassie shots onto a distant green. Metz hit low and long into the wind with his irons.

Everyone in the crowd clapped and whistled and shouted at the perfection of the shots. Everyone in the crowd save one man, that is. The big, blond fellow, standing in a back row, didn't get much pleasure from the show. I watched him when Gene Sarazen was announced.

Sarazen took his stance, swung, and the ball, as if on a string, sailed 200 yards down the middle. There was a burst of applause but none of it from the man in the back row. A hurt look crossed his face and he turned his head and muttered.

"And now," Smith said through the loud speaker, "we have Byron Nelson, National Open champion. Nelson wil show you how to hit the No. 1 iron."

The gangling Nelson yanked a one iron from his bag, dropped a ball, set himself, and no rifle shot ever went much faster or straighter than did the ball. The caddy, far down the fairway, didn't have to move to catch it on the first bounce.

The duffers, knowing the difficulties of this shot from a close lie, thundered their approval. But not the big fellow with the taffy hair. His reaction to Nelson's shot was as if the ball had struck him. He winced, and turned his back on the tee.

He didn't turn around again until Smith called Paul Runyan's name.

"This little fellow," Smith said as Runyan stepped down into a sandtrap, "will show you how to play the explosion shot."

This exhibition was too much for the big fellow in the back row. He turned away and started walking toward the clubhouse.

I followed him, because he is a friend of mine, and I knew what was going on in his mind.

The fellow was Craig Wood, and the shots that Sarazen, Nelson and Runyan had just demonstrated were the same shots they had employed to beat Wood out of important championships.

It was with a No. 4 wood, the same wood he used in the demonstration in fact, that Sarazen holed out on the fifteenth hole for a double eagle dence in the Masters' tournament at Augusta in 1935. That sensational shot cost Wood the tournament after he already had been given the check and accepted congratulations.

The No. 1 iron shot that Nelson fired in the exhibition was a duplicate of the one he sank for an eagle deuce in the second playoff round with Wood in the National Open at Philadelphia last year. That eagle was the deciding factor in the match and Nelson went on to win.

* * *

Runyan's explosion shots were the same deadly recoveries he used against Wood in the final round of the P. G. A. championship at Buffalo in 1934.

Paris Threatened By Rapid Nazi Invasion

Germans Claim Troops Only 75 Miles From French Capital; Say Allied Defense Crumpled and Fleeing; Belgian Government Moves.

came declarations tending to greatly minimize the gains boasted by the Nazis. A French war ministry spokesman conceded that the German attackers had succeed in forming a "pocket" bounded by the Sambre river in the north, Sedan in the east and the area just north of Rethel in the south. Calmly, the French spokesman observed:

"The first thing to do when a pocket is formed is to check its growth—to counter-attack or to take up new positions."

In the face of the claims of fast advances against Allied positions, the German government nevertheless moved to convince the people of the reich that the Allies cannot be beaten overnight.

An inspired comment issued in Berlin made it clear that Chancellor Hitler is fully aware of the immensity of the task he has undertaken in the offensive that began nearly a week ago.

Asserting that the high command's communiques are likely to be meager for the next few days, the Berlin statement added:

"The German nation knows that a struggle against the armies of two great military powers cannot be won in a few days or weeks."

But while the German public thus was exhorted to keep calm and patient, an official Berlin announcement said that Allied planes dropped bombs on Cologne, killing one man and injuring another, Wednesday night.

Yesterday in London the air ministry announced that British warplanes had delivered the war's heaviest aerial bombardment against German communications east of the Rhine on Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

The French high command, meanwhile, issued a guarded statement regarding the battle in the Sedan area. This communique stated:

"The battle continued yesterday and during the night between the Sambre river and the region north of Rethel, as well as south of Sedan. Fighting was less severe in Belgium."

Paris was declared within the military zone and placed under military rather than civil control.

In a dispatch from the Louvain front in Belgium, Robert G. Nixon, International News Service correspondent with the British Expeditionary Force, revealed that British Tommies have halted the German advance in that area.

He reported that shelling is now reducing the houses of Louvain to heaps of rubble.

At London it was announced that another detachment of Australians is disembarking at Egypt and proceeding to specified positions in Palestine.

Allied Guns Rain Shells On Advance Nazi Positions

(By United Press)

PARIS—Heavy Allied reinforcements today poured tons of high explosive shells and bombs into the apex of the German break-through in the Maginot line defenses 100 miles northeast of Paris.

The pounding of the Allied attack centered on Rethel, on the River Aisne, about 25 miles from Rheims. The destruction of this German salient was said here to be of utmost importance.

Great masses of heavy artillery and powerful anti-tank guns were brought up in an effort to box in the spearhead of the German advance which was led by tanks and armored cars.

At dawn the Allied command brought these forces into action and sent thousands of fresh troops against the German positions.

North of Rethel the Germans were attempting to widen their salient against fierce Allied resistance.

Planes of both the Royal Air corps and the French army poured bombs on the German column while the heavy artillery blasted away with high explosive shells.

Military commentators asserted that the German high command had thrown its most powerful striking force into the center of the French defensive system between Namur and Sedan where the fortifications are not as strong as on the main Maginot line.

Blasting through these defenses at various points, the armored columns dashed through the Belgian Ardennes and the country west to the Meuse with unparalleled speed.

This drive, it was said, caught the French at least partly off guard since great British and French forces had been deployed into Belgium to avert any chance of a German flank attack such as occurred in 1914.

The government had ordered last night that effective today the entire Paris military region part of the army zone, and thus completely militarized.

From Montmedy to Basle, Switzerland, along the Maginot line including the Rhine area, there was absolute calm, military informants said.

The Germans were throwing all their strength into the Meuse pockets in a desperate win or lose gamble, according to reports here, because of extremely heavy losses in five days of attack, and thus were skimping other fronts.

Fighting reached its greatest intensity south of Sedan yesterday, a military informant said, and continued throughout the night.

Some villages and woods had changed hands as many as five times during a single day, it was asserted.

It was at Louvain and Rethel and along the Sambre, the points of the dawn attacks today, that blitzkrieg operations persisted.

The Germans were trying to break out of their pockets to reach the sea and cut Allies off from Belgium.

But the alternative was that they must do so before the Allies completely hemmed them in what authorities called terribly exposed pockets and hammered them systematically to bits with artillery which was even now moving in on them.

Allies Reported Abandoning Defense Lines at Brussels.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Allied troops were reported reliably tonight to be withdrawing from the defense lines protecting Brussels as a result of a German threat to split Allied communications between France and Belgium.

In view of this threat, it was said in reliable quarters, the Allies have been forced to make what were described as "certain withdrawals" from the Belgian line along the river Dyle which protects Brussels.

The Germans, it was stated, are using at least two and possibly three heavily armored divisions in the push through the Mezieres-Sedan gap.

Each of these divisions includes about 400 tanks. In addition to these forces—which can penetrate with lightning rapidity once they have crashed trough the defense fortifications—the Germans are employing one or two armored divisions in Belgium and a total of probably eight or nine on the western front.

The British public tonight was being prepared for bad news from the fighting lines. The British Press association distributed a dispatch to hundreds of British newspapers declaring that the press must inform the public that "the present situation must be regarded as one of extreme gravity."

It was learned reliably that the heavy German forces which broke through the Allied front between Mezieres and Sedan have swung sharply to the northwest where their advance threatens to cut off the Allied armies in Belgium from their lines of supply and communication in France.

"Britons must prepare themselves to face the facts," the association dispatch said. "It is the duty of the press to prepare the British public to stand up stoutly to the Nazi menace."

The real Maginot line fortifications, it was noted, have not been penetrated.

Kiwanians Hear Origin Mother's Day Observance

CRESTLINE—Dr Herbert Garnes, pastor of St Luke's Lutheran church in Mansfield was guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club when mothers were guests.

Dr. Garnes explained the origin of Mother's Day, telling how Miss Ann Jarvis in 1908, as a tribute to her own mother started the custom which has since been observed not only in this country but in foreign lands.

He also stated that the influence of a good mother was greater than that of teachers, or law or education itself.

At next week's meeting, Kiwanians are urged to bring ministers of the county as guests.

Part of $500,000 Westinghouse Expansion

The above picture shows the new metal stamping building to be erected here by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company as a major part of a $500,000 expansion program announced today. It will be located on Eclipse street, adjacent to the vitreous enameling plant. Picture shows railroad siding which runs into building for convenient unloading of raw material.

MAPS $500,000 EXPANSION PLAN

Westinghouse to Erect New Buildings to Increase Refrigerator Output.

A railroad siding will run into the building, where raw material will be unloaded, processed in stamping machines and then transported to the vitreous enameling plant, adjoining it on the east where the stamped metal, used in fabricating ranges and refrigerators, will undergo the porcelain enameling process.

The enameled parts then will be transported over the new conveyor bridge, just being completed, to the other buildings and the assembly lines

Osborne explained that the assembly line for refrigerators is now capable of handling more work than can be turned out by the various "feeder" departments, one of which is the metal stamping

A two-story addition to the north end of the present "D" building, which faces on East Fifth street, is included in the program. The addition will be 80 by 80 feet, providing 12,800 feet of floor space, and will be used chiefly to expand the wire goods department, which produces wire shelves for refrigerators and ranges.

The metal stamping building will face on Eclipse street, on property purchased by the company from the Lomax Coal company.

The building was designed by Albert Kahn, Inc., Detroit nationally-known firm of industrial architects.

It will have walls of a specially-made glass, which will filter out the infra-red rays of the sun, permitting the light to come in but keeping out the heat

A general contractor will be in charge of construction and will sublet other work

Company officials said they expected work on the foundation to start early in June and steel work to be started in July, with the entire job to be finished in September, followed by the installation of new equipment.

The addition to the "D" building is expected to be completed earlier, since it is not so large an undertaking.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MAY 17, 1940.

The census has disclosed that a woman is not hesitant about giving the age she gives.

A psychologist says human infants are smarter than adult monkeys—but, on the other hand . . .

After "hearing both sides" of the European war story there is natural wonderment as to what is really happening.

'Fifth Column' Invades United States

WHILE President Roosevelt was asking congress for more than a billion dollars to strengthen defenses and warning the people of this country that the United States is no longer safe from swift and deadly attack, the Dies committee yesterday issued a startling statement to the effect that the "fifth column" movement is better organized here than in any other country in the world.

Taking a realistic view of the European war situation, and its potentialities, President Roosevelt emphasized the need of taking immediate steps to make "our defenses invulnerable and our security absolute."

And, during the course of his address, the president also made reference to "treacherous use of the 'fifth column,' by which people supposed to be peaceful visitors were actually a part of an enemy unit of occupation."

Defense against enemies within this country has assumed an importance equal to that of becoming prepared for an attack from without, and the attitude of tolerance previously taken toward alien propagandists for European isms cannot be safely continued in the face of present dangers.

In his statement, Chairman Dies of the house committee investigating un-American activities, said he has proof that subversive elements are better organized in the United States than in other countries, and that he will offer legislation that will take care of the situation in a constitutional way.

The earnest effort that has been made in this country to preserve individual freedom has sometimes led to the extreme of tolerating the activities of persons and organizations controlled by foreign governments and bent on destruction of American democracy.

If the defense of the United States against possible attack from the outside is to be made effective it is essential that more drastic action be taken at once to stop the "boring from within" that is now being done by alien agitators and their misguided followers.

The present menace is too great for continuance of a placid attitude toward internal plotting for overthrow of this government, however grotesque such an idea may seem.

West Fourth Paving Squabble

EXCEPT for the seriousness of the situation, and the long-drawn-out public inconvenience resulting from slow-motion work on a much traveled thoroughfare, the present controversy over the West Fourth street improvement might impress many people as rather funny.

Here is a project that had been under consideration for several years, with ample time given to work out all preliminaries, but it was not until the street had been torn up, blockaded in some sections and made practically impassable in others, that serious thought seems to have been given to whether it should be a new paving or a re-surfacing job, and how the costs were to be apportioned.

As one of the two principal east and west highways through Mansfield, the tying up of West Fourth street through the summer had seemed to sufficiently complicate local traffic without bringing on the possibility that this torn-up condition might extend through next winter.

Then, too, the impression is quite general that on a street which carries heavy truck traffic, foundation and surface should be the most substantial available, so as to assure permanency and smoothness over a long number of years, instead of requiring replacement every few years, as has been the experience in some instances of slip-shod street paving under political handling.

Nor should the advantage of speed in carrying through improvement work on a main thoroughfare be overlooked. Time allotted to such a project, once it has been started, should be no longer than is required to assure good workmanship by competent men using modern equipment.

An obligation rests upon Mansfield city councilmen and other responsible officials to see to it that West Fourth street is substantially paved to meet heavy traffic requirements, and that the job is completed as quickly as possible.

The Red Cross Calls

THOUGHTS of many will revert to experiences of twenty-five years ago, before America's entry into the World war, as the call goes out for contributions to the Red Cross relief fund.

As has been true in the past, it is again that great humanitarian agency, the American Red Cross, which is looked to for aid in times of suffering, distress and misfortune.

In stricken Europe just now there is great need for such unselfish service as can be performed by the Red Cross and it is in financial support of this work that Americans have opportunity to express their sympathy and be of actual help to war victims.

The war relief quota for Mansfield and Richland county has been set at $6,000, as a share of the $10,000,000 total to be raised in the United States.

As heretofore, in such emergency calls, a number of citizens have expressed willingness to carry through the campaign for contributions. Their task should be made easy by readiness of public response.

Colleges and Politics

EXPERIENCED reporters have been impressed by the skill with which college students have managed recent mock political conventions. One newspaper remarked, in an editorial:

"Those responsible for the major party conventions might learn a thing or two by watching a student conclave. The youngsters set a snappier pace, eschew long-winded oratory and, to a degree almost startling to seasoned convention-watchers, seem to know what they want.

"Perhaps the current crop of student politicians will give the nation, a few years hence, real streamlined political conventions. It is a boon greatly to be desired."

It is also greatly to be desired that these students, after graduation, continue to take a keen interest in politics and government. Also that many of them follow public service as a career and share in government more directly and fully than most of their elders have done.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—News reporting is a highly technical field. It can not be arrived at without assidious labor. One does not learn to distinguish the false from the true by asking questions and taking notes. The newspapers themselves, profiting by years and generations of experience, must be regarded as the highest authorities in the business of disseminating factual information. In self-respecting newspapers, news that can not be proved is always qualified.

I mention this because radio, at this point, is going through its first big war. It is still an infant industry. Never before have its reporters and its commentators been put to such a task as it now faces. The experiences it gains from these undertakings now will go a long way in developing its technique and in maturing its judgment. Its judgment, at this writing, is not yet as mature as is desirable. I say this with regard to the commentators themselves, who, under pressure of world-shaking events, are prone to seize microphones and offer pure rumor as fact.

ON RECENT evenings I have been a little amazed at the rashness of certain well known, and highly paid, commentators, who dramatize events without first bothering to ascertain whether they are fiction or fact. Where there is doubt, that doubt should be stressed. These commentators have not always emphasized this doubt. I think this is a mistake. We are living in an age when institutions are crumbling and when national boundaries are fading out like whitewash in the rain. With their access to untold millions, radio's commentators can render a service of inestimable value by merely exercising a little caution, and temperance.

THERE are a great many—a really surprising number—of successful negro orchestras in this country. If you asked me to name the outstanding ones I would have to accept the judgment of other people. Frankly, I don't know.

But I can tell you this. If you journey down to Fulton, Miss., and ask the people there, they will give you one name—Jimmy Lunceford.

He is a Fulton boy who came to Broadway by devious ways. One of these was a stop-over at Fiske University, where he acquired a degree and 4 letters, emblamatic of his skill as an athlete. He became a professor and at one time was a head-waiter.

But his heart was engraved with a four-letter word that you pronounce Jazz (Swing hadn't yet been invented), and he started out. Duke Ellington says he has "a mood and a color that nobody can imitate." I can tell you that his records (he records for Columbia) are high sellers. And that is a good indication of his popularity. Hughes Panassie, the French authority, insists he is the most important think that ever happened to Swing.

ALL I know is that he is a big (240 lbs.), easy-going, mild-mannered product of the gulf states who found his medium, created a style, and has become rich. He has arrived at that point where most people think of relaxing and looking for a little fun.

"Me," says Lunceford, "me. I'm just getting started. I'm just beginning to find out what music is."

Listen, World!

They Blazed a Trail.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE'S an old trail on the ranch. It runs from the oak grove up and over the ridge to the dead pine—down to the gulley where the white violets bloom—and the gold flecks gleam in every Spring freshet around the ledge where the last old Indian woman lies buried beside the wreck of her camp. And then up again to the crumbling stone house that Spanish Pete built long before '49, and where they found him happily dead at last . . . his dark face smiling at the little, faded Madonna who stood in a niche in the wall . . . his gnarled fingers twisted in a rosary.

White violets and a gaunt old savage's grave . . . gold nuggets, Indian grinding bowls and arrow heads . . . a dead man smiling at a Mother's face. Treasure like that would make any trail important. You'd like to be walking it, wouldn't you? Tracing its story? But, for all its drama, you'd be hard put to find the old trail unless you knew how to follow the blazes on the trees. For the path itself hardly shows . . . only the faint scars still flickering on the tall trunks point the way.

Nobody knows who cut the first blaze, or why. Some Indian buck hunting the deer that still nibble our garden patch . . . or perhaps a squaw gathering acorns. Then, later, miners following a prospect—trappers and traders struggling through to camp, marking their passage with deep, swift cuts on pine, oak and alder. Scores of hands, hacking their way through the chapparal, leaving their mark.

Dead, gone and forgotten now, all of them—and the scars of their hatchets or tomahawks nearly covered by the growing bark. Yet, for those who can trace them, there's a marvel of meaning in those fading scars. Scattered blade strokes once, driven by weary or bewildered hands . . . that seemed to have no purpose or plan. Yet now they add up into a record.

It's my birthday today. I'm 57.

YOU might think there's scant bond between an old wood trail and a busy, modern woman's life—but you'd think wrong. For the heart has its blazes as well as those scarred tree trunks. And it takes many a year before you can see where they're all leading.

Scars. Strokes driven deep by the cutting blade of life. Those months of pain. The day Dad died. That twilight when I turned my back upon my home. The drudging dreariness of those years in the mine. Hunger and rags. That one, brief glimpse of joy. And then . . . a boy's still face that did not answer when I called.

Scars. Blazes on your heart and mine that all the growing years cannot erase. We cried against them, when the blade first fell. We could not see their meaning or their sense. We called them "cruel, unfair"—"a needless waste."

Yet, now, at 57 I begin to see there really was a purpose and a plan. They blazed a trail, those cutting strokes of life . . . they cleared a way I, elsewise, never would have found. How could I gauge the load a poor man bears, if I had never borne burdens of my own? Or know the bitterness of desperate mothers' tears, if I had felt no heart break of my own?

They blazed a trail. No smallest stroke was lost . . . We trace life's meaning by our buried scars.

Timely Editorial

Labor's Share.

It is interesting to know, in these days of stress on the part of labor to get its share, that the former situation, in which material cost more than wages, has been reversed. Today, in most industries, salaries and wages are near fifty-fifty with the cost of materials, and in the automotive industry they have risen above that cost.

The Automobile Manufacturers' Association added, in 1937, the latest year for which figures are available, more than $1,500,000,000 to the industry. Of this amount $755,887,000 was paid out in wages, and material and transportation costs, taxes, etc., took the remainder. Thus labor received 50. 2 per cent of all that money.

In the rest of the industries labor received from 40 per cent upward. This does neither prove nor disprove the assertion of many labor men that workers are not getting what is coming to them, but it does show that payments for wages are the heaviest single item in any industry.—Ohio State Journal.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Time Heals.

How merciful it is that pain,
So grievous as it falls,
Is healed by time, so healed that mind
At last scarcely recalls.

The bitterness, the hurt that was
A poignant, searing thing,
That tore the soul until it seemed
Naught could sure comfort bring.

And yet time heals the bitterest hurt,
Years pass and that which seemed
Could never be forgotten is
As dim as something dreamed.

Health And Diet

Vitamin E In Paralysis War.

—By DR. CLENDENING

A MOTHER rat who has been deprived of certain vitamins in her diet does not seem to have much connection with the cure of cases of paralysis, but such association has been made through research.

Vitamin E, which is found in most green vegetables, has been known as the "sterility vitamin." If removed from the diet of female animals, they are unable to produce litters.

Dr. Herbert Evans, of the University of California, thought it might be interesting to take a mother rat who had just been delivered of a litter, remove vitamin E from her diet, hence from her milk, and see what would happen to the progeny. He was expecting some change in the reproductive functions but to his surprise he found that most of the little rats developed a peculiar form of paralysis before the tenth day of life. When he added vitamin E to their diet, the paralysis disappeared.

Tried It in Paralysis.

A Nek York neuroligist heard him read a paper on this subject and thought he would like to try out the effect of vitamin E on some cases of obscure paralysis. The particular cases of paralysis had to do with muscular atrophy. One such case was that of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis of the spinal cord. With the use of concentrated vitamin E, this case was cured, the first time on record for this disease.

London clinicians report that in children with muscular atrophy results of treatment with vitamin E were remarkable. Every patient, except one, which was treated for six weeks, improved.

The results have been comparable to the results obtained in pernicious anemia. Fifteen years ago this was considered an incurable malady, and nobody supposed that the changes that had occurred in the stomach and blood and bone marrow were capable of assistance by any form of medication. But the use of liver extract has shown that these grave anatomical defects can actually be overcome.

Outlook Changes.

Up to the present time it has been supposed that any time a nerve cell was destroyed, the outlook for regeneration was hopeless. Whether the use of vitamin E in these cases proves highly successful or not, at any rate the demonstration so far has changed the pessimistic view of doctors concerning nerve regeneration, and paralysis is a combination of a change in a muscle and a nerve.

We are coming to believe that it is impossible to say which is more important. We do not know literally where the nerve leaves off and the muscle begins. It may be that in many forms of paralysis the muscle atrophy occurs first and involves the nerve secondarily.

The new vitamin E appears to affect the muscle more than the nerve cell, but it is unimportant except as a theoretical discussion. The happy and encouraging thing is that these cases which have heretofore seemed so hopeless may possibly be helped.

Daily Bible Thought

Ye shall not need to fight in this battle, set yourselves, stand ye still, and see the salvation of the Lord with you, O Judah and Jerusalem; fear not, nor be dismayed, tomorrow go out against them: for the Lord will be with you.—2 Chronicles 20:17.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Seeing them together you'd never know that the president and Jack Garner have just concluded a series of hot primary scraps. The one expression that best describes their personal relations is "affectionate."

Whatever their political differences, the two men genuinely like each other. Illustrative of this was their conference the day California balloted to decide between a Roosevelt third term or a Garner anti-New Deal delegation. There wasn't the slightest trace of animosity between them.

Roosevelt kidded Garner about his impatience to hurry back to Uvalde to fish and Garner kidded him back.

"Tell you what we'll do, Jack," said the president. "You come with me to the dedication of the Great Smoky Mountains park and then I'll accompany you to Uvalde for a few days fishing. What do you say?"

"It's a deal, Capt'n," grinned the vice president.

When they got down to the serious business of the legislative situation on Capitol Hill, they conferred amiably and sympathetically.

No Bolter.

TO INTIMATES, Garner does not deny being disappointed at his poor primary showing. He admits quite frankly that he expected to do a great deal better. But he evinces no bitterness, is philosophical in defeat. And he makes one thing quite clear: He will not fight Roosevelt if he runs again.

Garner still is opposed to a third term. But he will not join in any disruptive movement at the Chicago convention and he will not "take a walk" should the president be renominated.

"I've been a party man all my life," Garner says, "and I also believe in majority rule. I didn't bolt Al Smith in 1928 and I don't intend engaging in that sort of thing at this late stage. I will support the party ticket, whoever is on it."

It is possible that Garner, eager though he is to return to the quiet and peace of his Texas home, may go to Chicago. If he does go it will be for two purposes; to preserve harmony, and to help put over House Floor Leader Sam Rayburn, his close friend and 1932 campaign manager, as vice president. That depends largely, of course, on who the No. 1 candidate will be.

If it is Roosevelt, Garner will throw his whole weight behind Rayburn. If it is Hull, then a Southerner for vice president is out, and the candidate must come from the East or West. Garner isn't enthusiastic about Hull, but will accept him as a compromise.

And although Garner is personally fond of Jim Farley, he is not cordial to a Hull-Farley combination—Jim's private ticket. Garner hasn't indicated to what extent he would oppose such a slate, but he has told friends he doesn't think it would be wise politically.

Note—The Senate Ladies, weekly luncheon club of senatorial wives, apparently think that the Garners are finished with public life. And Mrs. Garner apparently agrees with them. They voted to present her with a farewell gift and leave the choice up to her. She chose a silver candelabrum.

New U. S. Zeppelins.

SECRETARY EDISON is continuing his shake-up of the navy department, has ordered Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, the expert on dirigibles, back to Washington. This means more experimentation on lighter-than-air craft.

Rosendahl has been in semi-exile on the USS Milwaukee ever since the admirals went sour on dirigibles. But when Edison visited Hawaii last month he called Rosendahl to his hotel and told him to report to him personally in Washington.

Edison told Rosendahl that his father, Thomas Edison, was laughed at as a crank during a good part of his life, but his inventions made history. Similarly the admirals have scoffed at the giant navy Zeppelins, but Edison thinks they are worth further experiment at least to the point of having Rosendahl dust off the general board's report of 1935 which OK'd dirigibles, but was pigeonholed by Secretary Swanson.

A bill is now before congress authorizing the construction of 12 to 18 small, non-rigid blimps, to be used for observation purposes. But even if the bill passes, congress probably will not appropriate any money at this session.

* * *

Taft and Wagner.

SERIOUS-MINDED Senator Bob Taft was attending a meeting of the senate banking committee, where he made an extended statement on a financial measure under consideration.

Later, as they were leaving, Committee Chairman Bob Wagner joshed Taft: "That was quite a campaign speech you made this morning, Bob."

"And you would have been right in there making one yourself," grinned back Taft, "if you hadn't been born abroad."

Note—Able, hard-working Wagner is constitutionally barred from the presidency because he was born in Germany. He was brought to this country as a child by his immigrant parents.

Political Chaff.

TAFT managers privately are sore at Governor Bricker. They suspect the Ohioan of making secret overtures to Pennsylvania boss Joe Pew to undermine Taft strength. . . . Socialist Norman Thomas, comments on young Tom Dewey's position on foreign affairs: "Dewey asks himself, 'What about Europe? Do we or don't we?' And the answer always is 'Dewey!' " . . . The army has 16 so-called "foreign language students," that is, officers studying foreign languages abroad. The officer learning Chinese is stationed in China and the one learning Japanese is located in Japan. But the officer studying Russian is stationed in New York City. . . . Many members of congress depend on ghost-writers, usually their secretaries, to write speeches. But not Arizona's erudite Senator Henry Ashurst. A gifted grammarian, he not only writes his own speeches but helps colleagues with theirs.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"When Greek Meets Greek . . ."

Today, "when Greek meets Greek," seldom is either a Greek! This now figurative phrase for a fracas originally had a literal application.

The author of the line is Nathaniel Lee, seventeenth century English playwright, who used it in Act IV Scene 2 of his drama, Alexander the Great:

The first appearance of the words show them to be somewhat different from present usage.

They were:

"When Greeks joined Greeks, then was a tug of war."

An allusion was to the struggles between Philip of Macedon, continued by his son, Alexander the Great, and the Greeks.

Wild Flowers

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WALKED through three large woodlands near our home, observing wild flowers. Before tall trees shut out the sunlight with their arching canopy of leaves, while moisture is abundant, the woods floor is carpeted with bloom. The almost translucent stems of spring beauties, wind flowers, bluebells, and bold yellow mustard grow rapidly and I saw rattle weed, solomon seal and colonies of mayapple. Above, soft maples wore vivid sprays of red. Hickory and beech and sugar showed bursting buds. Soft creamy greenish bracks of composite dogwood flowers were half their average size. Wild cherry and buckeye tops wore tender green.

All that remains of the chestnut family stood guant and bare, reaching sharp dead branches upward. At the base tattered robes of bark sheltered the whitened trunk.

Only twice, in little secluded nooks where casual eyes would not penetrate, did I see the most delicate and beautiful flower of the season—the trillium. In these little hollows protected by stumps and deep matted wild grape vines, they grew. I broke a new path through the thicket and there nodding in the gentle south wind, I found a colony of twenty. The three white petals glistened in the morning sun and three green sepals spread beneath the cups of white. I walked among them and felt the joy of rare company.

I did not pluck them, for I knew that if I did no human eye could ever see the sight again. They may be beautiful standing in a vase for one short hour, but he who loves the trillium enough to leave it on its stem will give other woods lovers the opportunity to enjoy a rare pleasure. Spring beauties and violets will bloom again, when their bloom is plucked, but other wild flowers should be enjoyed where they chance to grow.

I sat upon an old rail fence and looked and listened. Off in the valley a cock pheasant called. Orchards on the valley slopes were pink with buds. A golden bumblebee sailed over. An early butterfly lit on a dandelion bloom and folded and unfolded its blue wings. The world of our little valley is so beautiful now that it makes one's heart ache.

Council Gets Request to Employ Four More Firemen

LEGISLATION TO BE ACTED UPON SHORTLY

Councilman Takes Steps To Create Vacation Force; Pay Problem Unsolved.

City council at its next meeting will be asked to provide four additional men for the fire department, a request that has been made annually by Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger for the past several years.

This was learned today when George C. Kyle, council member of the firemen's pension board, instructed City Solicitor Marion D. Ward to draft legislation that would permit Mayor William J. Locke to hire four men from the civil service eligible list.

The measure however, fails to make provision for funds to pay them and Kyle admitted that he didn't know where the money would come from.

More than a month ago Chief Seeburger informed Mayor Locke that four additional men were needed in the department to "fill in" while firemen were off on summer vacations.

He told the mayor that the services of four men would be needed for four months, and that $1,760 would have to be provided to pay each the base rate of $110 a month.

Locke said today he had turned the request over to council's finance committee. Fred Miller, finance chairman said he had asked the firemen's pension board to approve the transfer of $1,760 from its balance to the general fund to defray the extra expense.

Obtaining a ruling from City Solicitor Marion D. Ward that such a transfer was illegal, Kyle said the board had refused the request but that he had asked for the legislation to provide the men regardless, believing that some finance plan will be worked out.

FARMER DIES

Services for Clement L. Fast Tomorrow at Sullivan.

ASHLAND — Funeral services for Clement L. Fast, 73, Sullivan, retired farmer, who died at his home Wednesday evening, will be held at the Sullivan Christian church Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with Rev. Charles Wells officiating. Burial will be made in the Nankin cemetery.

Mr. Fast, a native and lifelong resident of this county was born in Orange township, Sept. 1, 1866. He was a member of the Sullivan Christian church.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. C. C. Clark of Lorain, Mrs. F. J. Nolan of Canton and Mrs. George Fast of Sullivan and two brothers, William Fast of Ashland and Tully M. Fast of Canton.

PLEADS GUILTY

Ex-Convict Admits Entering Ashland Filling Station.

ASHLAND—Robert L. Riley, held in the county jail here on a three-year-old indictment, pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering into the Koontz filling station east of Jeromesville, on arraignment before Judge H. E. Culbertson.

Riley, whose former home was in Indiana, has been serving a one to 15 year term at the Ohio State penitentiary on a burglary charge.

He was indicted after the filling station was broken into on the night of April 6, 1937.

Judge Culbertson did not pass sentence, but took the case under advisement.

CANDID CAMERA PICTURE WRONG

Photographer's Girl Friend Not Liked By Wife.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — It will take more than a candid camera to get Earl C. Rubright, 29, out of his present dilemma.

Rubright, who was fined $250 several months ago on a charge of deliberately getting himself involved in ten automobile accidents so he could take candid camera pictures, was ordered to pay his wife $1,500 alimony in $30 installments.

Common Pleas Judge Frank S. Day denied Rubright a divorce from Dorothy Welsh Rubright, 25, after hearing testimony that Rubright insisted at 2 o'clock one morning that his wife meet a woman friend he had known only three days.

SAVE STRENGTH

Brawny Boys Not Always Best Workers Says Speaker.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Don't jump to the conclusion that the boys with the big, rippling muscles turn in the best day's work, advises Felix Jo ir, personnel officer of the Cook county forest preserve district.

Said he in an address: "The man with the big, bulging muscles is not always the best workman. Too often he loafs around displaying his brute strength while the less brawny do the work for him."

PROCLAIM WPA 'OPEN HOUSE'

Mayor, Commissioners Issue Joint Proclamation; Two Dinners Planned.

In line with a nation-wide observance of "open house" week for WPA projects, Richland county commissioners and Mayor William J. Locke of Mansfield, today issued a proclamation, designating next week as "This Work Pays Your Community Week."

The observance will be launched Monday night with two WPA project workers' dinners in Mansfield. City and county officials will be invited to speak at the dinner sessions.

The proclamation, signed by Commissioners C. L. Mitchell, Guy Stewart and Ray Hout and Mayor Locke, said:

"Whereas, the citizens of this city and county are recipients of many and varied benefits made possible through the local public agencies co-operating with the Works Progress administration, and the citizens should be fully cognizant of the nature and extent of these benefits and advantages.

"Therefore, we hereby proclaim that the week of May 20 to May 25 be set aside as 'This Work Pays Your Community Week,' and should be utilized for visiting projects in operation in the professional and service division of the WPA."

Seven projects in Mansfield will be opened to the public during the week. They include the sewing, housekeeping aid, adult education, roof drainage, historical records, recreation and school lunches projects.

COUNCILMEN'S 'SECRET' LEAKS

Five of Them Hold Caucus In Office Building on West Fourth Paving.

failed to reach any definite agreement on whether a combination concrete and brick surface should be put down or whether the entire job should be brick, it was learned that the pending legislation, turned down at the May 7 council meeting, will go before council again in a special session to be called by Mayor William J. Locke for Tuesday night. The legislation will be the same as presented at the May 7 meeting, it was reported.

The measures authorize the state highway department to proceed with the work, which includes the reconstruction of the street from North Diamond street to a point east of Ausdale avenue. The legislation sets up a cost of $48,000 to the city and property owners.

Kyle admitted that he was "interested" in the proposal since the entire project was in his ward and citizens along the street were objecting to putting down a combination concrete and brick surface.

He said he backed the plan favored by the property owners and had not given up hope of obtaining an all brick pavement, estimated to cost an additional $10,000. This would call for revision of plans by the state highway department.

Murray Shaffer, division highway engineer at Ashland, has told council that to change the plans would take between 30 and 90 days and might cause the state to give up paving the street this year.

Council has tentatively agreed that the city has spent to the limit in providing 50 per cent of the cost of the job and it seems doubtful whether it would provide the additional funds, even if the plans were revised.

For this reason some members have argued, it is believed the legislation will be passed on favorably at a special meeting next week.

The measures were tabled at the regular May session when Miller questioned the city's share of the cost, since the project was to be done with WPA labor.

The original estimate had been placed at $96,000 on a contract basis. A more comprehensive project is now planned but the city's share remains the same.

LINER BOMBED

Former U. S. Ship Sunk Under Belgian Ownership.

LONDON —(U.P.)— Refugees reported today that the former United States liner President Harding had been bombed and sunk off the Belgian coast.

The 13,869-ton liner was one of several ships sold to a Belgian shipping concern by the United States lines when American neutrality regulations prohibited American ships from operating in most European waters. The Harding had been renamed Ville de Bruges.

RELIEF DRIVE

BUCYRUS — County Chairman Tom Henderson of the American Red Cross Thursday announced the appointment of John Davis of Bucyrus as chairman of a drive to raise Crawford county's quota of $2,000 for war relief.

Those wishing to contribute to the fund are asked to leave their money at any of the Bucyrus banks. It will be sent daily to New York or Washington headquarters of the Red Cross.

GALION—At the meeting of the Galion lodge of Elks, Thursday, plans were made to join the pilgrimage to the Harding memorial at Marion on June 9.

GENERAL UDET DISCLOSED AS BRAINS OF NAZI AIR ATTACK

BERLIN—(U.P.)—The brains behind Germany's parachute army were identified today as those of Gen. Ernst Udet, the famous barnstormer and stunt flier who has thrilled crowds at exhibitions in Europe and the United States since the World war.

It was he, aviation sources said, who devised the parachute strategy used so successfully by the Germans in Norway and Holland, and in capturing the Eben Emael fort in Belgium.

The exploits of men Udet trained were believed responsible for the "Buck Rogers" tales of some new secret German war weapon. ...

Udet was said to have devised three techniques: 1. An improved method of bailing out and dropping supplies, used in the capture of the Oslo, Norway, airport and in reinforcing the isolated German garrison at Narvik; 2. A new composition of parachute units for a so-called "rolling attack" with the aid of engineers; 3. A completely new method of landing troops involving a steering apparatus to guide parachutes to any spot desired.

Udet is well known in the United States for his stunt flying at Cleveland air races in 1931 and at a Los Angeles air meet in 1933. His specialites were upside-down flying 100 feet from the ground scooping up handkerchiefs from the ground with his plane's wing tips and similar feats.

MINNEAPOLIS —(AP)— Every man has his limit of patience and in Andrew Olson's case it involved his shoes.

on what to do about any right-of-way for German troops when the need arose.)

A steady stream of troop trains and columns of high speed fighting equipment, replete with artillery, tanks, armored cars, field kitchens, and truck trains was reported, by way of Bratislava, to be moving into eastern Slovakia.

Slovakia, which gained a measure of independence under German military protection in the breakup of Czecho-Slovakia, lies across the narrower eastern point of Hungary from northwestern Rumania — the Transylvania section (which Hungary lost in the World war and would like to get back.)

Still other German forces were reported concentrated in the Zistersdorf region, north of Vienna, at the western tip of Slovakia.

Hundreds of Nazi warplanes were said to be poised at Vienna and Slovak airports, ready to render the almost traditional "softening" action of the blitzkreig technique.

Swiss Tension Eased By Nazi Withdrawal.

ZURICH — (INS) — Tension in Switzerland eased somewhat today as a result of reports that some of the German troops concentrated along the frontier have been withdrawn.

It was presumed the German troops are bound for the fighting area in Belgium and northern France.

Earlier the Swiss general staff reported that Swiss fighter planes attacked a formation of German bombers over Zurich, forcing one of the German craft to land.

Two wounded members of the German crew were reported captured and interned.

Rumania Protects Oil For Wartime Use.

BUCHAREST — (AP) — The Rumanian government decreed today that all oil companies must sell and store in their own reservoirs whatever quantity of petroleum products the army needs for possible wartime use.

Observers regarded the measure as a new obstacle for Germany in her strenuous efforts to obtain a promised quota of 130,000 tons monthly which is less than half filled so far in 1940.

Anti-aircraft searchlights played over Bucharest last night and new sirens were tested atop the Rumanian capital's tallest buildings. The army strength is still estimated at more than 1,000,000 men.

BROMFIELD'S NEW NOVEL ON LIBRARY LIST

'Night In Bombay,' Dealing With Life In India, on New Book Schedule.

Mansfielders will be pleased to learn that Louis Bromfield's most recent novel "Night In Bombay" dealing with life in India has been added to the shelves of the Mansfield Public library this week.

A long novel, written by James Street about gamblers in the south at the beginning of the 19th century is also new, as is a novel by Bellman, which pictures a midwestern town's history in the years following 1890.

Hughes Mearns has compiled an interesting account concerning the creative powers of adults in his new book, while Frank Buck has just written about his experiences with animals of every kind.

Dr. Samuel Bradury discusses the costs of the private practice of medicine in late writing, and Winston S. Churchill has compiled a collection of his fortnightly letters touching on the foreign policy and defense of England.

New Books of Fiction:

"NIGHT IN BOMBAY" by Louis Bromfield presents an unforgettable picture of life in India. The novel deals mainly with a small group of strongly-contrasted individuals, three of them Americans. The minor characters belong to the cosmopolitan riff-raff which haunts race tracks and hotel bars. There is a hope for something better than filth and poverty and degradation of India seen in Colonel Mote and his beauty-loving wife.

"OH PROMISED LAND" by James Street is a long novel of the gambling entrepreneurs who pushed westward from Georgia at the beginning of the 19th century. Big Sam Daney, the main character, is based on Big Sam Dale, a giant trader and scout who migrated from Georgia into what is now Mississippi.

"KING'S ROW" by Bellaman is the story of two decades in a midwestern town of four or five thousand where the jazz age evidently began in the 1890's. Bellaman pictures a town which has become a stagnant backwater breeding interesting but horrible slime.

Additions:

"Out in Society" by Banning.

"Grave Without Grass," Cameron.

"Dateline: Europe." by Rosten.

New Non-Fiction.

"THE CREATIVE ADULT" by Hughes Mearns is an account by the chairmen of the Department of Creative Education, New York University, of his experience in drawing out the creative powers of adults by teaching individuality. He first persuaded his groups to find and perfect their own individual powers, then to develop individual judgment and appreciation. The suggestions he gives can be followed by any person who seeks to enlarge his sphere of living and enjoyment. His chapter on the parent as a creative leader gives an interesting application of progressive methods.

"ANIMALS ARE LIKE THAT" by Frank Buck and Carol Wild tells of this hunter's experiences with animals of every kind. He concludes from many observations that personalities vary in animals quite as much as in human beings.

"THE COST OF ADEQUATE MEDICAL CARE" by Samuel Bradbury, M. D., is a study which calculates costs in terms of the present-day private practice of medicine, and according to the incidence of diseases by age and sex, groups. It shows the distribution of the costs among the various kinds of medical service. The author is a practicing physician in Philadelphia.

"STEP BY STEP, 1938-1939", by Winston S. Churchill is a collection of his fortnightly letters during the last three years on the subjects of foreign policy and defense. They tell the "tale of these three eventful and disastrous years."

Others on This List:

"Candle in the Dark" by Edman.

"American Philosophies of Religion," Wieman & Meland.

"Suffering Human and Divine," Robinson.

"Profitable Public Relations," Batchelor.

"Scenery for the Theater," Burris-Meyer & Cole.

"Story of Flying," Black.

"Modern Book of Home Canning," Kains.

"How to Make Good Movies," Eastman Kodak Co.

"American Naval Songs & Ballads," Neeser.

"Candida" by Bernard Shaw (With illustrations from the play as presented by Cornelia Otis Skinner).

"Scandinavia, The Background for Neutrality," Olson.

The Young Men's Christan association originated in England in 1844.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

The western part of our own country is probably the favorite setting for adventure stories. Both of the books for this week's addition to the display have their settings in the West.

"ON THE STAKED PLAIN," by Eric P. Kelly—Flo Harbison wanted excitement, but it was summer time in Amarillo. Her father allowed her to search the file of closed cases in his law office, however, to see if she could find a mystery to solve. The solution of what she found there kept her busy indeed for the whole summer. It concerned the purchase of a tract of land mysteriously guarded for many years by a strong fence in the midst of an otherwise open plain. Both boys and girls will be surprised to learn who it was who bought that land.

"GOVERNMENT HUNTER," by Montgomery Atwater—Doug Mulholland III was a millionaire's son hunted by gangsters who threatened to kidnap him. The refuge of the family was on a dude ranch in the western mountains. Doug became the assistant of a Government Hunter—a G-man who hunts out the animals who are outlaws in the wilderness. Doug also exposed the gang when they traced him to his refuge. The adventures of their outdoor life are especially interesting to boys.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES LEADING INTERESTS

Dinner Parties, Afternoon Sessions, Meetings of Circles Occupy Mansfield Women on Third Thursday.

YESTERDAY social activities were in abeyance as many of the leading church organizations and circles met in regular session with various members or at their church headquarters. The St. Paul Thursday Nighters enjoyed a covered-dish dinner at the church at 6:30 p. m. last night with Mr. and Mrs. Roland Stahl, Miss Daisy Schuff and James Wappner in charge.

Baskets and vases of spring flowers decorated the parlors, and the supper was served buffet style from a table centered with a bowl of tulips and sweet peas and lighted tapers. The guests ate at small tables which were covered with pastel cloths and centered with miniature centerpieces to match the larger arrangement.

Miss Katherine Miller led the devotions, and during the business meeting which followed it was decided that the group will sponsor a health lecture by Mrs. Louis T. Schaefer May 23 at 8 p. m. A social hour, games and contests followed. Members will meet again June 20, and the committee and place will be announced later.

The Ella Montgomery guild of the East Mansfield church held the annual mother-daughter banquet at the church last night. A color scheme of yellow and pink was carried out in the table decorations. Mrs. Donald Hart gave the welcome to mothers, and Mrs. J. P. Smith responded.

Others participating in the program were Mrs. Howard McAllister and Mrs. Naomi Metcalf. Community singing concluded the program. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Wilbur Harry, Mrs. McAllister and Mrs. Smith.

Sings at Session.

Mrs. Smith's selections were "An Open Secret," by Woodman; "May Morning," by Dunza, and "Trees" by Rasback. Louise Reynolds was the accompanist.

There were 24 present to hear Mrs. H. W. Peterson speak on missions. Tea was served at the close of the afternoon from a long table in the dining room. Mrs. I. H. LeBarre poured.

Have Program.

Rev. David N. Roller, pastor, introduced Rev. A. W. Moore, Columbus, who spoke on his mission experiences in India, at the meeting of the Women's guild of the First Presbyterian church which was held yesterday afternoon in the parlors.

Rev. Moore, who has spent 29 years in mission work, is on furlough at the present time. He was accompanied to the city by his wife, Mrs. Moore, who is a doctor, and Dr. Henry Foreman.

Mrs. D. O. Meese, chairman, announced the progress of the ticket sale for the costume recital to be given May 20 at the church by Donald Scott-Morrison. The concert, which is public, is being sponsored by the guild.

During the session Mrs. F. E. Domer presented the guild with a table cloth which her circle of last year had made. Miss Edith Douglas led the devotions. Plans were also made for a mother-daughter banquet to be held June 20 at the church.

Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon from a table decorated with a crystal bowl of pink roses, purple iris and white snapdragons. Mrs. Edward Axtell and Miss Douglas poured. Members of Circle Two were in charge, with Mrs. George Ingram, vice chairman, making the arrangements.

Celebrate Anniversary

When the Mansfield Kiwanis club celebrated its 20th birthday last night with a dinner party at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, wives and friends of the members were the guests. Shown above, left to right, are Don Mumford, Bellefontaine, governor of Ohio, and Mrs. Mumford, and Mrs. David N. Roller, and Rev. WITTENGERG COLLEGE at Springfield is predominant in the news today, and as you naturally would expect, our Mansfield students there are among those featured in the headlines. . . . Ed Chatlain was among seven junior men recently named for membership of Skull and Chain, senior men's honorary society. . . . An outstanding athlete at the college and member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, Ed was a member of Pick and Pen, the junior men's honorary, this past year. . . . As you probably know, he's the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Chatlain.

Chi Omega sorority at Wittenberg college enjoyed a field day this week by taking major honors for the spring of 1940. . . . And two Mansfield girls, through their contributions and co-operation, helped the organization attain these heights—they are Evadine Selby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Selby, a freshman . . . and Mary Smith, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith, a sophomore. . . . The Chi Omegas won the scholarship cup for the best sorority grades on the campus, the same evening won the annual singing contest—and then took the pan-Hellenic cup. . . . Oh yes, and one of the sorority's members was chosen Alma Mater for this year, the third consecutive Chi Omega to get the honor.

And Virginia is continuing the custom this year—her approaching marriage to Howard Heston (to be solemnized on June 16) was announced this week.

One Good, One Bad Plaint

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

One child of the family may be so bad because a brother or sister (usually younger) is so good.

Hardly a day goes by that I don't receive a letter about a troublesome child who has a brother or sister who is described as a model child. After all the naughtiness, ill-behavior and delinquencies of the problem child have been enumerated, there follows a typical account of a model brother or sister. So often do I observe this pattern that the moment I read, "Now I have another child," or "His brother (or sister) two years younger. . .", I need not read further. I can be practically certain the second child is one whose virtues will be named, who is reported good in every respect the other was reported bad. Moreover, I can pretty safely guess that the first is so bad chiefly because the second is so good.

Also Causes Failure.

Yes, many a child in the family is disobedient, stubborn or rebellious because a brother or sister is so obedient, docile and co-operative. Many a child also fails or lags at school because a brother or sister passes with flying colors and wins high grades. Of course, the ills and lacks in some may not be caused entirely by the virtues and excellencies in the other. Yet, no one who carefully studies such relationships can doubt that they are partially caused thereby.

What may be done? You certainly don't want to dispose of the better-adjusted child or have him grow less acceptable. Your problem is to help him keep growing in his good ways and the other child to become more like him.

The worst possible thing you can do is to tell the problem child that he should be like his model brother or sister. But the chances are you already have committed this serious offense. Even if you have not made the comparison, you probably have dramatized it in your demeanor, voice or breathing. If, improbably, you have done neither, your relatives and friends have.

Must Help Him.

You will reduce the jealousy in the problem child, and consequently cause his conduct and personality to improve, as you succeed in helping this problem child feel more loved and worthy in the family group and enjoy more achievements in all his efforts and relationships. To this end you will find more ways to punish him less and rebuke him less; you will try to keep him more often from failures of any sort and turn him more frequently in direction of successes.

In case you wish to read further on this subject, you will find a chapter on jealousy in my book, The Modern Parent, and a larger chapter in my The Modern Family, both of which are probably in your public library.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. When I take my two-year-old daughter along with me to the grocers, she will beg and cry till I buy something for her. How may I correct this fault?

A. Announce to her before you go with her next time that hereafter you are not going to buy anything for her while at the grocer's. Then keep your word, no matter how she acts. As soon as she discovers that you word is reliable, the problem will end.

Q. My boy, 12 years old, bites his finger-nails to the quick. Please advise.

A. Work first on yourself and the family for more serenity. Have the doctor look your boy over and try to help you to build him up physically. Hold him rigidly to an early, regular bed-time hour. Limit his movies to one a month and radio to a few quiet, non-exciting programs. Encourage him to play out-of-doors but not for long periods at a stretch. Say nothing about his nail-biting. As he and the family grow more serene, he will gnaw less at his nails. As his nails grow out a little, have them manicured.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, May 18.

According to an interesting chain of mutual aspects, with an intriguing congeries of curious, subtle or bewildering astral forces, there should be some perplexing adventures in the realm of the spiritual, intellectual, emotional, social or artistic expression. There may be thrilling, novel, unique or even glamorous occurrences with either romantic fulfillments or mystical experiences of an unpredictable and unprecedented nature. Under such stimuli there could be surprising accomplishments in creative forms or emotional urges culminating in inexplicable flights of fancy. The intuitions are keen and the inner urges unorthodox and audacious. The young may marry.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of peculiar, novel or extraordinary adventures, expressed in mental, spiritual, emotional or romantic forms, according to the position and development. With the young and eligible it may be romantic marriage or even elopement.

A child born on this day may be versatile and creative in some advanced cultural or intellectual form.

Do You Know the Yew?

No other evergreen is quite as beautiful as the Yew. It is one of the best for landscape purposes and should be used much more often than it is. It also has the good quality of being able to thrive in dense shade or full sun. You really should get to know the Yew.

The English Yew is not hardy in all parts of the United States, but the Japanese Yew is and will withstand extreme heat or cold, or both.

The Yew differs from most narrow-leaved evergreens in that it bears scarlet berries instead of cones. The contrast between the dense dark green foliage of the Yew and its cluster of fleshy, red fruits makes a striking picture.

HAVE SESSION.

There was an all-day quilting meeting of the Willing Workers society at the Little Washington church yesterday. A covered-dish dinner was an event of the noon hour. The group will gather for another all-day session at the church next Wednesday.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Philip Veritzen handled the situation most diplomatically. I granted him that, even though I was resentful at the difference between his fulsome laudation of Olina's musical talent and his palpable hedging concerning Mary's probable success in her role.

"I am exceedingly proud of my daughter-in-law," he answered Nancy Carew, sending a fatherly smile toward Mary, who did not see it because she was gazing raptly at Miss Carew. "But I am too old and wary a hand to stake any opinion before hand about what any player, known or unknown, is going to do with a role. But I have high hopes, nevertheless."

Mary was looking at him now, intently, and as he finished his sentence, he gave her an airy wave of his hand, plainly meant to be encouraging. But I, who, as Lillian has told me, "knows Mary's every mood and tense," was sure that her father-in-law's words had brought her feeling down to a still lower point, and, I told myself, it already was entirely too low for comfort.

"And now to our muttons," the great producer said, and the players went back to their chairs, evidently with the impression that the rehearsal was about to commence. But Philip Veritzen had another idea which he proceeded to explain.

"I am going to ask your patience for an innivation at this point," he said. "I am a great believer in music as a stabilizer of thoughts and emotions. Not only for that, but to give you all a taste of what Miss Veritzen has in store for her hearers. I am going to ask her to render for us one of her concert solos, which of course, is too long to be of use in the play. All harp music there must be incidental or very short solo work."

The request was no surprise to Olina. I saw that clearly as I looked at her, although she was registering the pretty confusion of an amateur musician suddenly asked to play before an audience. And my wrath rose again against her, and against her future stepfather, for the crass manner in which they were conspiring to rob Mary of the "spotlight" due her.

"Have you your music down here?" Philip Veritzen asked silkily. "Or shall we have it fetched for you?"

"Fortunately," she said sweetly, "I brought all my music down yesterday in order to practise. It has been so long since I have touched a harp. It is all over there, behind the harp in that little cabinet which Mrs. Graham so kindly lent to me."

"Then," Philip Veritzen said, proffering his arm to her, "if you will favor us."

"I shall be delighted to play, if you want me to," she said with just the right amount of pretty shyness, and we all watched her as she took her seat before the harp and ran her fingers over its strings.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

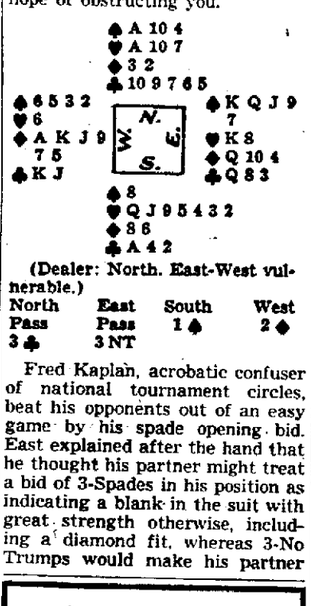
"The Authority on Authorities"

THWART THE PSYCHERS

IF YOU expect to encounter inveterate psychic bidders, it will pay you to be ready for them. One adjustment which should be made in your bidding system is that which gives the natural meaning to the bid of a suit named by your opponents. Otherwise you are likely to find yourself unable to get your side into the correct declaration whenever your opponent bids a suit which he doesn't hold, in the hope of obstructing you.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

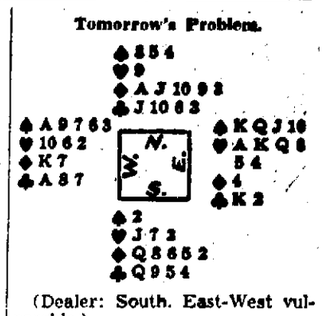
North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
3 ♣	3 NT

Fred Kaplan, acrobatic confuser of national tournament circles, beat his opponents out of an easy game by his spade opening bid. East explained after the hand that he thought his partner might treat a bid of 3-Spades in his position as indicating a blank in the suit with great strength otherwise, including a diamond fit, whereas 3-No Trumps would make his partner certain he held strength in the suit.

West feared to monkey with the 3 No-Trump contract by going to 4-Spades, as East might have perhaps only the A-Q or possibly K-J-10, with the rest of the suit bunched in the South.

Mr. Kaplan led his heart Q, the A winning and the 10 knocking out the K. After East ran diamonds, he had to lose the lead, whereupon the opponents took the rest of the tricks, setting him two. The sure spade game could have been reached despite the psychic if East had been able to bid 3-Spades in its natural meaning, as West then would have gone to 4-Spades, and just one trick each would have been lost to the suits holding the hostile three aces. Of course, if East had opened the bidding with 1-Spade, there would would have been no trouble, but he reckoned his hand a bit too weak.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If North makes a psychic defensive effort with 1-Diamond, East doubles and South then makes a psychic bid of 1-Spade, what is the best way for East and West to reach their small slam?

BOARD REJECTS SECOND BIDS ON WATER METERS

City's Going to Buy Them at 'Right Price or Know Why,' Crafton Says.

City officials for the second time today rejected bids submitted by seven firms on the purchase of 515 water meters Similar bids were rejected two months ago when it was learned that the low bidder had offered the same meter at a lower price to a neighboring city

Declaring that the recent proposals were "too high," Service-Safety Director C M Crafton said the board of control which is comprised of him and Mayor William J. Locks, would probably call for new bids next week.

"I'm going to buy meters at the right price or know the reason why," Crafton asserted.

The proposals opened by the board last week were approximately 10 per cent higher than the original bids received in March, Crafton said Only two firms submitted a lower price and they were a higher priced meter

Crafton said the Neptune Meter company, New York City, bid $9 97 per unit against a previous proposal of $10.50 The last time the Hersey Manufacturing company, Boston Mass., bid $10 50 against a previous proposal of $11 50

The Neptune company's total proposal was second high. The firm quoted a price of $5,244 The Hersey company was high with a bid of $5,523

Other proposals, all rejected were. The Phoenix Meter corporation, Staten Island, N Y, $5,040 35; Worthington-Gamon company, Harrison, N. J., $5,032, Badger Meter company, Milwaukee, Wis, $4,957 35, Pittsburgh Equitable Meter company, Pittsburgh, Pa, $4,918 80; Buffalo Meter company, Buffalo, N. Y, $4,949 10

FIRE FOLLOWS FLOOD

FOREST HILLS, Cal.—(U P.)—If Mr and Mrs Walter McFarlane were believers in Greek mythology they would certainly believe the gods had conspired against them First, their summer home was flooded and damaged by an overflow of the Russian river. Then while they were both at work cleaning the mud and debris, fire broke out in the attic and the house burned down.
